Roosevelt Allots Last of 4 Billion To Speed Works

Preliminary Action Is Completed Before He Starts for West.

PWA Is Allocated Final $300,000,000

Rural Electrification Program Removed From Works Fund.

By Felix Bruner.

President Roosevelt yesterday completed much of the preliminary work necessary to bringing the relief program to its peak and indicated that before he starts on his Western trip tonight he will have allocated virtually all of the $4,880,000,000 appropriation.

The President gave PWA its final allotments, approving $200,000,000 for additional non-Federal projects and $100,000,000 for housing. This is in addition to $127,000,000 previously alloted to NRA.

He also made arrangements with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make loans for the rural electrification program, removing the financing of this division from the works relief fund.

Plans for establishment of a permanent Civilian Conservation Corps were outlined and details of National Youth Administration activities were discussed, with indications that steps were being taken to meet objections of educators.

Program a Mystery.

Still something of a mystery were the grade-crossing-elimination program and the work to be done by the Rural Resettlement Administration.

From more than $1,500,000,000 worth of projects, Secretary Ickes culled $200,000,000 worth and submitted them to President Roosevelt for his approval. Similarly, he cut his housing program from $300,000,000 to $100,000,000, and individual projects to cost that amount were given presidential approval.

Approval of the PWA and housing allotments means that no more such subjects will be considered unless recessions are made in some instances and new work substituted. The PWA work includes every State. The housing program includes only some of the cities in which the Government already owns land or has options. Neither list has yet been made public.

Thousands of PWA proposals were abandoned as the President finally approved the program. It is believed that among those abandoned were many of the larger undertakings, which had to be dropped so that the money could be spread more thinly over the country. The $200,000,000 allotment represents only 45 per cent of the cost of the projects. The remainder is supplied by the communities in which the work is done.

WPA Gets $800,000,000.

Approval of the PWA program followed President Roosevelt's earlier order transferring $800,000,000 to the Works Progress Administration, bringing the total for that work up to $1,700,000,000. This is in addition to about $900,000,000 to be spent by the FERA for direct relief.

The Rural Electrification Administration, which originally was to have been an important part of the works program, is expected to be almost completely removed from it. No money has been allotted for projects and none is expected to be. Instead, the RFC is expected to make loans for the work, all of which is expected to be self-liquidating.

Loans will be made through the Electric Home and Farm Authority, which was organized in connection with the TVA. Arrangements for this financing were made at a White House luncheon attended by Morris L. Cooke, director of rural electrification; Jesse Jones, chairman of the RFC; David Lilienthal, Tennessee Valley Authority director, and Thomas Corcoran and Benjamin V. Cohen, power authorities.

CCC Quota Is 500,000.

In discussing a permanent CCC, President Roosevelt revealed that he expected the maximum strength of the organization to reach only 500,000. The original goal was 600,000 by November 1. The President said that no new enrollments would be made after October 1, when he expected the membership to be 500,000. Last reports indicated the number was slightly higher.

President Roosevelt said he expected the organization to be reduced to a membership of 400,000

Murder Charge Lodged Despite Suicide Letter

Man Linked to Limerick Case Held in Death of Girl in His Room.

A formal charge of murder was placed against Frederick George Taylor, 52-year-old steelworker, after a coroner's jury yesterday held him for action of the grand jury in connection with the death of Mrs. Evelyn Jordan, 24.

Mrs. Jordan, a bullet wound in the abdomen, was found dying in Taylor's third-floor room at 419 New Jersey avenue southeast, early Sunday morning. After first refusing to name her assailant and later confessing to a suicide attempt, she died en route to Casualty Hospital.

Admits Loaded Gun.

It was testified at yesterday's inquest, however, that the wound which cost her life could not have been self-inflicted. Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, associate coroner, who performed an autopsy, told the jury that "a person would have to be a contortionist to inflict such a wound." The course of the bullet and its point of entry in the woman's body, Dr. Murphy declared, would make the suicide theory untenable.

Taylor, an amateur photographer and one-time suspect in the Beulah Limerick case, denied the shooting in a voluntary statement to the jury. He said Mrs. Jordan came to his room about 11 a. m. Saturday and they stayed there all day, drinking and talking. About 6 p. m., he continued, she lay down on his bed, apparently intending to take a nap.

A few minutes later he heard a muffled shot and turned to see her clothing ablaze. He beat out the fire with his hands, hurriedly left the room and summoned an ambulance by telephone from a corner grocery store.

Taylor admitted he had a loaded gun in the room and said he went to the home of his estranged wife

Boy, 3, Killed Under Truck; Toll Now 81

Chevy Chase Coal Firm Driver Held; Claims Speed 13 M.P.H.

Colored Girl, 15, Hurt August 24, Dead; 80th Victim.

Three-year-old Paul Dillingham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dillingham, of 5506 Connecticut avenue northwest, was instantly killed late yesterday when he broke away from the hands of his nurse and ran into the path of a truck.

The accident occurred on Belt road near Thirty-ninth street. The death brought the year's accident fatality list to 81.

The child was crushed under the wheels of the truck. The driver was Ernest Stewart, colored, 51, of Chevy Chase, Md., who was taken into police custody pending action of the coroner. The truck belongs to the Thomas W. Perry coal firm of Chevy Chase Lake, police said.

Although the child was rushed to Emergency Hospital just after the accident, physicians at the hospital pronounced him dead at arrival. It is believed that he died instantly.

Slips From His Nurse.

Stewart, the driver, said he was going south on Belt road at 13 miles an hour when the little boy, one of two children who were walking with their hands held by a nurse, slipped her hold and ran into the truck's path. He jammed on the brakes, he said, but it was too late. The other child was William Dillingham, 8, a brother of the dead boy.

The boy, whose father is a civil engineer, was the second traffic death of yesterday. Earlier in the day, Georgiana Holloway, colored, 15, of 89 O street northwest, died in Gallinger Hospital from injuries received August 14. She was the eightieth traffic victim of the year.

The girl was struck while riding a bicycle on First street northwest by an automobile driven by Sam Beradine, 38, 1406 North Capitol street. She died of a broken back. Beradine is being held for the coroner to appear at an inquest.

Two Hurt Mysteriously.

Police are investigating mysterious circumstances that surrounded the injuries of two women alleged to have been hurt in a motor accident.

Leula Heflin, 46, and Ruth Benson, 38, both of 824 Eighth street northwest, were removed from their home to Emergency Hospital. The former is in a serious condition.

Detective Sergt. William Liverman, of the homicide squad, said yesterday he thought the women were hurt in Virginia. Who was driving the car or how the women got home is a mystery, he said. An ambulance called to the address found the injured women. They had apparently been there for some time.

Biggest Fire in Years Sweeps London Docks

London, Sept. 25 (AP).—One of the biggest riverside fires London has seen in years turned the Colonial wharves into a raging inferno tonight. More than 200 firemen battled the blaze for more than six hours from floats on the river and water towers adjoining the buildings. Haw rubber stored in the Colonial warehouse fed the flames.

Coping stones crashed from a height of 70 feet, narrowly missing the firemen, and a great mass of stonework fell into the river with a deafening roar, almost burying three lighters.

Edna Gardner, 'Flying Nurse,' Becomes Bride

D. C. Holder of 11 Speed Trophies Weds 'Phone Manager in Iowa.

Edna M. Gardner, the "Flying Nurse" of Washington Naval Hospital, has been married to H. G. Thompson, telephone exchange manager of Chatfield, Minn., it was learned yesterday.

An Associated Press dispatch from Chatfield said the wedding of the woman speed flyer took place Saturday at Decorah, Iowa.

Her interest in aviation developed from a hobby which she managed to pursue while taking care of ailing sailors at the Naval Hospital.

In addition to her speed flying, for which she has won 11 trophies, the nurse also found time to win prizes in precision landings, aerial acrobatic contests and bomb dropping.

In 1934 she won the Annette Gibson speed trophy at Roosevelt Field, Long Island, and took first place in other women's speed contests throughout the country.

Alleged Slayer Trapped by Police

Northampton, Mass., Sept. 25.—John Bey, wanted in Connecticut to face murder charges, was captured tonight.

Bey has been sought since the fatal shooting of Constable John Decarli in Ellington, Conn.

The fugitive was surprised by police in a building near here taken without any shots being fired. He had been sought by more than 100 officers and constables in an intensive hunt lasting several days.

No Boy Friends for Her.

New York, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—Henrietta Leaver, 19-year-old 5 and 10 clerk from McKeesport, Pa., who became Miss America of 1935 at Atlantic City, today said, while awaiting screen tests:

Dutch Schultz Held in $9,000 Robbery in N.J.

Perth Amboy Arrests Ex-Beer Baron, Hiding Under Alias There.

By the United Press.

Perth Amboy, N. J., Sept. 25.—Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer, former New York beer baron and racketeer, was arrested here late today and lodged in jail.

Police Chief John F. Murray said he wanted to question Flegenheimer about a $9,000 express robbery last fall.

The racketeer, arrested outside the Packer House Hotel, gave his age as 34 and his occupation as an unemployed trimmer. Police said he would be arraigned in police court at 6 p. m.

Flegenheimer said he had been living "here and there" for the past few weeks, but had not been in New York City. He said he came here to visit friends, but did not name them.

At the time of the robbery, police questioned men close to the racketeer, but were unable to locate Flegenheimer, recently cleared of Federal income tax evasion charges after two trials at Malone, N. Y.

He offered no resistance to arrest and his first act at the police station was to engage by telephone State Senator John E. Toolan as his attorney. Chief Murray said he might attempt to hold Flegenheimer for New York police, although New York authorities had not sent out an alarm for the gangster.

Five men were involved in the express robbery. They held up the driver of the truck and escaped with the money, all in currency. The driver gave police a good description of the hijackers.

Police said Schultz was registered at the hotel under an assumed name. They did not disclose the fictitious name, nor the names of several men with the gang leader when he was arrested. The party had two expensive automobiles.

Louis to Tour Foreign Capitals, Taking All Fistic Contenders

Mike Jacobs Plans Swing Around South America and Europe With Chocolate-Hued Protege; Max, Licking Wounds, Fumbles for Alibi.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 25.—The chocolate soldier, a one-man army named Joseph Louis, is heading for the fighting fields of South America and Europe to show folks abroad, as he showed Max Baer and 90,000 in the Yankee Stadium, just how much devastation can be packed in the fists of one super-warrior.

The battling bridegroom, who married Marva Trotter three hours before he knocked out Baer in four rounds last night, wants to travel, wants a pleasant honeymoon, but also wants to fight every two weeks as long as he's in the business.

So Mike Jacobs, his personal promoter, worked out a solution of most of these problems today as Baer, licking his grievous wounds in a hotel suite, insisted that he couldn't have gotten up once more last night, and vowed that he didn't know why he failed to carry a slugging fight to the Detroit Negro as he had promised Jack Dempsey and all the rest of his friends.

Finishing the count on a total gate that did exceed $1,000,000 after all, including the radio and motion pictures, Mike announced that following a late November charity match at the New York Coliseum, an indoor arena seating 20,000, against Walter Neusel or Ray Impellittiere, he will take Louis on a swing through the foreign capitals. Neusel, German heavy, will get the match if he beats Primo Carnera in Madison Square Garden November 1.

"We'll leave early in December," Mike said, "and I want real fights for Louis in Havana, Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro and anywhere else they want him in Latin America. Then we hope to swing through Europe, fighting in London, Paris, Berlin, Rome, Madrid, Hamburg, anywhere at all. Louis wants no exhibitions. He'll fight ten and fifteen rounds, whatever the foreign promoters prefer.

"Over in Germany I plan to sign

Cubs Blank Cards, 1-0; Title Is Near

Smokeballs of Warneke, Homer by Cavarretta Doom St. Louis.

Galan's Superb Catch in Eighth Wins Ovation From 19,989 Fans.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Sept. 25.—The gas house gang, of St. Louis, was gassed today.

Withering fumes from the unerring smokeball of Lonnie Warneke, and one terrific explosion off the bat of 19-year-old Phil Cavarretta, left the world's champion Cardinals hanging all but lifeless on the ropes today as the rampaging Chicago Cubs blanked them, 1 to 0, for their nineteenth straight victory, a brilliant conquest that put them within only one more triumph of the National League pennant.

The victory, scored in one of the most superb duels since Abner Doubleday first introduced baseball, virtually clinched the flag for the sensational men of Grimm. They are now "dormie" on the staggered champions, four games ahead and four to go.

Furthermore, they beat the great Paul Dean, fresh freshman of the weary Cardinal pitching staff, who battled them all the way with seven strikeouts and seven hit balls, only to be tumbled into defeat.

Cavarretta Scores Homer.

It was Cavarretta who provided the one big blow that won the spectacular game—a contest featured not only by magnificent pitching, but beautiful catches and errorless ball on both sides—but it was the poker face from the land of the Ozarks who asphyxiated the gas house gang.

Warneke allowed only two hits—a single by Lynn King, young Texas League rookie from Houston, in the fourth inning, and a fluke double by Jim Collins in the eighth that gave him his only anxious moment of the afternoon.

Only one batter reached third, and only 28 batsmen faced him.

Cavarretta's home run smash came in the second inning just as young Dean was flashing some of the finest pitching of his brilliant, tireless career with the Cardinals. Paul had struck out four batsmen and allowed only one hit, a harmless double by Fred Lindstrom, up to the moment that Cavarretta strode to the plate with one out.

Dean, pitching almost nothing but strikes, blazed a curve inside and waist-high to the young Italian on the first pitch. Cavarretta swung and there wasn't any doubt about the blow. The ball whistled on almost a straight line over the right-field pavilion and over the protective screen for a home run. The smash didn't appear so harmless at the instant, but with Warneke gassing batter after batter, it was the blow that staggered the enemy into defeat.

Galan's Catch Superb.

Augie Galan, mighty little outfielding hero of the Cub forces, gave Warneke his only disturbing moment of the game in the eighth, but immediately saved the day with a superb catch. With one out, Collins smashed a low ball to left-center. Galan, playing too far back for the home-run hitter, raced in and attempted a shoestring catch but missed, the labeled single rolling almost to the wall for a double.

Collins raced to third as Billy Herman snared a bad hopper and threw Bill Delancey out at first. That was the spot where Augie

The Italo-Ethiopian Crisis.

Italy assured Great Britain she does not intend to let her African campaign start a European war. This assurance was given in an official communique after Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador, conveyed a message of good will to Premier Mussolini from Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary.

At Bristol, England, David Lloyd George called on his government to cut Italian lines of communication to Africa and stop "this outrage against Ethiopia."

At Geneva, an Italian spokesman said Italy is fast losing interest in what the League may or may not do.

Great Britain, having concentrated much of her naval strength in the Mediterranean, is working at full speed to build up her depleted home fleet.

Emperor Haile Selassie asked the League to send observers to Ethiopia to fix responsibility for any aggressive act committed.

By the Associated Press.

Geneva, Sept. 25.—Italians at Geneva disdained tonight an Ethiopian appeal for the dispatch of League of Nations observers to that troubled kingdom, and their spokesman went so far as to declare:

"Italy is rapidly losing interest in what the League may or may not do."

That was the retort when the spokesman was asked what he thought of a telegraphic appeal to the League from Emperor Haile Selassie, stating Ethiopian troops had been withdrawn 30 kilometers from the frontiers to avoid "incidents" and reiterating a request for impartial observers to "fix the responsibility" for any aggression that might occur.

In all probability, the spokesman continued, Italy's chair at the League Council's horseshoe table will be vacant tomorrow when the Council begins to talk over the report noting Italys rejection of a report noting Italy's rejction of a plan for peace.

Tonight the Council virtually had decided to proceed in the Italo-Ethiopian tangle under paragraph 4

President Lists War Articles For Licensing

U. S. Control in Making of Items Named Will Be Effected Nov. 29.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Taking the first step toward making effective the Government's control over the munitions industry, President Roosevelt yesterday issued a proclamation enumerating articles constituting "arms, ammunition and implements of war" which can not be legally manufactured or exported without a Federal license after November 29.

The list proclaimed by the President corresponds closely with several specifications of arms and munitions now in general use, notably the list of arms and munitions included in the embargo on shipments to the Chaco combatants and the list contained in the draft treaty now before the Geneva Disarmament Conference.

The list does not include any article which is not primarily an implement of war, with the possible exception of airplanes. Motor trucks are not included because they primarily are useful for peace-time pursuits. There is no mention of cotton, oil, copper, steel and other raw material essential to modern warfare.

But the list of "arms, ammunition and war implements" promulgated yesterday was not primarily intended for the purpose of invoking an embargo under the neutrality act should such action become necessary. It may or it may not be the list of articles subject to an embargo under a subsequent proclamation. The President's freedom

Stratosphere Gondola Tested on Pressure

Rapid City, S. Dak., Sept. 25 (AP).—An all-night pressure test of the metal gondola for the stratosphere flight brought a verdict of "satisfactory," today from Capt. Albert W. Stevens, flight commander.

Helium gas, forced into the sealed globe at pressure twice as great as it will have to stand during the flight, disclosed only a few connections needed tightening.

The third expedition into the stratosphere is scheduled to start early next month.

Pope to Build Bomb Shelter

Chamber Impervious to Gas Will Be Constructed in Vatican Garden.

By the United Press.

Vatican City, Sept. 25.—A shelter against poison gas bombs will be constructed deep in the Vatican gardens and linked to the papal palace by underground concrete corridors, it was reported on reliable authority tonight.

The chamber would be large enough to accommodate the Pope, cardinals, prelates, papal soldiers and civilians living in the papal state in case of an air attack.

Popes during the Middle Ages took refuge in the famous Castle Angel by means of a masonry corridor when attack was imminent.

The project will be undertaken immediately by the Vatican building department.

The plan is in line with similar measures to be carried out by the Italian government in Rome. A plan for the Pope to seek shelter at the summer residence, Castel Gandolfo, was discarded because of the distance from Rome, 42 kilometers (26 miles).

The shelter would be built of reinforced concrete, with chambers located far enough below the earth so that the most powerful aerial bombs would not reach it.

Make Crime Profitless, Postal Sleuth Advises

Chicago, Sept. 25 (AP).—The way to end crime is to make it difficult and unprofitable, Chief Postoffice Inspector K. P. Aldrich, told the National Association of Postmasters today.

"Capital punishment and the so-called 'wiping out' of criminals will not stop crime," he said.

He asserted that the Postal Inspection Service of 555 men conducts 100,000 investigations and makes more than 4,000 arrests annually and never resorts to "third degree" methods. It has a record of 98 per cent convictions.

Break With Soviet Demanded In Legion War on U. S. 'Reds'

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Sept. 25.—A vigorous international program, spearheaded by an attack on communism and a demand for withdrawal of recognition of Soviet Russia, was adopted by the national convention of the American Legion today.

A 21-point Americanism program, presented by the committee headed by J. J. Twomey, of Massachussets, was unanimously approved.

Eight of the resolutions were specifically directed against "subversive movements" and formulated an aggressive 1935-36 program for the organization.

Immediate withdrawal of Russian recognitition was demanded on the ground that the Soviet government had not ceased its sponsorship of "subversive activities" in this country.

Five of Selassie's Pet Lions Escape, Kill Sentry, Injure 5

By the Associated Press.

Addis Ababa, Sept. 25.—Machine gun fire brought down five pet lions of Emperor Haile Selassie, "Conquering Lion of Judah," after they had escaped from their cages, killed a sentry and injured five others, two seriously.

The beasts made a rush for freedom early in the morning. Apparently the lion keeper had left the cage door open. The animals ate several of the Emperor's pedigreed Australian sheep and slew two horses. Their roars and the screams of pain from the animals aroused the entire neighborhood of the palace.

A sentry thought one of the lions was a dog and struck it with a stick. With one blow of his paw the lion killed the man, striking him in the stomach.

Soldiers began a hunt with torchlights. The animals were felled finally when Col. Mekouria, commander of the Imperial Guard, opened fire with a machine gun. One of the lions was found on top of the dead sentry. During the uproar a soldier shot another, mistaking him in the darkness for a lion.

Haile Selassie decorated Col. Mekouria for bravery and ordered a pension for the family of the sentry who was killed.

of Article XV of the League covenant, the Associated Press was informed.

That course, which would not provide for immediate sanctions, would require the Council to "make and publish" a report of facts in the case, together with recommendations.

Queries Ethiopia's Status.

As expressed by the spokesman, the Italian attitude tonight was that the League has failed utterly to realizeEthiopia is not a "real" nation and has faild to understand that events have proved Ethiopia has no qualifications whatsoever to be a member of the League or to belong under the Covenant.

"It is true," the spokesman added, "that we hav not specifically requested expulsion of Ethiopia from the League. But all our speeches and documents have indicated that is our feeling."

In other delegations, great interest was manifst at Ethiopia's appeal.

A British spokesman pointed out a commission of experts such as was requested by the "king of kings" would not have the same status as the Lytton commission which was setn to Manchuria.

That commission, it was explained, went to gather data upon which the Council could base recommendations for settlement of the Sino-Japanese dispute.

In the present crisis, according to the British view, the Council already possesses sufficient data upon which to base recommendations.

If observers were sent to the Ethiopian frontiers, it was felt, this would be another gesture of League warning to Italy. But practically speaking, a handful of officers would have difficulty in watching extended frontiers, it was said.

Indicative of the critical situation in which the League found itself, Anthony Eden, of Great Britain, tonight recommended, at a meeting of the Steering Committee of the Assembly, that the Assembly be not adjourned judicially at hte nd of th wk.

Would Lave Way Clear.

League regulaions require three weeks' notice for convocation of a special assembly, and it was Eden's idea that if the assembly were not adjourned sine die, it could be called together in any emergenc ywithout advance notice.

He was supported by Eamon De Valera, president of the Irish Free State, but no decision was reached pending another meeting of the committee tomorrow or Friday.

Tonight a group of Britons, including John Masefield, the poet, Lord Cecil and John R. Clynes, labor leader, presented to Premier Pierre Laval, of France, a letter assuring him Great Britain intends to adhere strictly to the League Covenant in all cases of aggression.

In British circles the letter was regarded as intended to indicate the willingness of the British public to back up the government's assurance to France in the event of any new aggression in Europe.

The letter, expressing satisfaction at Laval's Geneva declaration, stated:

"We on our side and the organizations we represent absolutely have resolved to support, without regard to political or religious differences, our government in its decision to maintain the covenant.

"Not only should the collective assistance principle apply in invasion of a feeble African state. It should apply to prevent and repress aggression in Europe or elsewhere.

"Such is the determination of an enormous majority of the British people."

Madariaga to Act.

Salvador de Madariaga, of Spain, chairman of the five-power committee, will report on its work at a public session tomorrow. The Italo-Ethiopian dispute is the lony question to come before this session.

Just what kind of committee will be named to draft the Council's recommendations has not yet been decided, but it is possible all members of the Council except Italy will be in on it.

Between You and Me

Republican Luck Breaks; Lucas vs. Hilles; New York Leader's Strategy.

By Raymond Clapper

HERE is Republican luck for you.

Everything was going fine for the Republicans. Mr. Roosevelt was fumbling his works programevery day. People were getting tired of experiments and the happy-go-lucky technique. His share the wealth plan backfired. Mounting expenditures were causing increasing worry. The presidential attack on the Supreme Court went sour. Rhode Island elected a Republican Representative, a cheering tip-off. Republicans, it seemed, were on their way at last.

Then Huey Long was assassinated on the even of a campaign in which he was expected to help the Republicans by keeping up a running attack from Mr. Roosevelt's left. That was an unfortunate circumstance.

Still, the Republicans were not downhearted and the Republican national executive committee met to tun up their organization for the pre-convention campaign. Representing all sections of the country, they sat around the table and reported that the tide of sentiment was turning everywhere in their favor. They were keeping expenses within income. Prospects were good, everyone said, for all of the campaign money they would need. They recessed for a delightful luncheon given by National Chairman and Mrs. Henry P. Fletcher and all agreed that almost anyone could beat Roosevelt next year.

All that the Republicans had to do was to work together, not engage in family quarrels like the trying to cut each others' throats, Democrats do, and refrain from Then they could all go to town in the same bandwagon.

But as they returned to their afternoon deliberations, they heard of a most unfortunate development.

Newspaper dispatches had just arrived reporting that Robert H. Lucas, one of Kentucky's leading Republicans, commissioner of internal revenue in the first part of the Hoover Administration and executive director of the Republican national committee during the latter part and through the 1932 presidential campaign, had filed a suit for libel in Louisville, mentioning as one of the defendants, Charles D. Hilles, of New York. The petition alleged that Hilles instigated a recent newspaper attack on Lucas.

Without reference to the merits of the case itself, the filing of the suit recalled to party leaders the fact that there is a deep cleavage within the organization which is likely to be accentuated rather than healed during the next few months. It centers around Hilles, the New York Republican national committeeman, former national chairman—under Taft—and for years one of the mightiest individuals in the party organization.

A tall, gray man, with a smile and pleasant disposition, a quiet worker, Hilles has always been regarded by the Western wing of the party as the political spokesman for great New York financial interests. He holds many corporation directorships and is usually identified as an insurance man. His financial connections in New ork are extensive and deep.

Whatever the facts are, Western Republican leaders often have opposed him in party councils on the ground that he was voicing the view of what is roughly called the "Wall Street crowd."

Hilles fought the nomination of Hooved to the end was never in the highest favor during the Hoover Administration. After his favored position under Coolidge, this was a cause of much comment within the party. In 1932 he went along with Hoover—there was nothing else to do. But after the defeat, he set about in his usual, quiet way, to corral his strength and resume his former role as the most powerful individual in the national committee. He has a number of Eastern allies—Roraback, of Connecticut, and Pomeroy, of New Jersey, being two of his most faithful lieutenants.

Hilles is looking ahead to the 1936 nomination. Already he has been advising leaders in one State and another to send uninstructed delegations or favorite sons. His advice has been to wait, to go easy, not to let any one candidate build himself up into a dominating position. A few days ago he made a week-end yacht cruise with Gov. Harry W. Nice of Maryland, a favorite son. His strategy, an old favorite, is to divide and put his own man in. A national nominating convention, deadlocked among a field of candidates, is a happy hunting ground for the Hilles type of backroom worker.

A few weeks ago Lucas set out to break up this game. That, it is reliably stated, was the purposebehind the recent Lucas presidential poll of Republican organization workers which attracte so much attention because Senator Borah led the field. Lucas hoped by this demonstration of sentiment among party workers to show Hillies that the party rank and file was not in sympathy with any New York plot to dictate the next candidate. He wanted it demonstrated that the party west of the Hudson had its own ideas.

Lucas is not now a part of the national committee organization. But from the outside he expects to exert considerable influence, and it will be aimed at preventing Hilles from dictating the next nomination.

All of which perhaps does not interest the average voter. But it is a fight which may in part determine for whom, besides Roosevelt, the average voter can cats his ballot.

A new Dealer's wife appeared at a recent party in a flutter. Her husband, she explained, had just been given a fine new job in the Administration. Under a certain new works project he had an allotment of $250,000 which must be spent within a year.

"I do hope," she said, "that he makes good."

G.O.P. Leaders Plan Heaviest Drive in West

Plan Laid to Open Office in hicago Soon; Liberal Funds Expected.

By the United Press.

Republicans will attack President Roosevelt where he is strongest—in the agrarian West — and somewhere out in the Prairie States they hope to find the man who will carry the G. O. P. banner into next year's presidential election.

That was the dicision yesterday at a meeting of the Republican high command, which assembled in secret session here to map the 1936 battle against the New Deal.

Chairman Henry P. Fletcher, cool and confident, came out of a meeting of the Republican national executive committee to announce that mid - Western headquarters would be opened soon, probably in Chicago, and that money and talent would be distributed liberally through the corn and wheat belt.

G. O. P. Counts on East.

Members of the national executive committee seemed to take it for granted that Republicans would win the East next year and that Democrats, as usual, would sweep the South. The real battle ground, they said, would be from Pennsylvania westward past the Rockies. That was solid Roosevelt territory in 1932.

Men whose names have become blurred memories since the New Deal rode to power passed up and down the corridors of the hotel where the executive committee met. Big, booming Jim Watson, of Indiana, was there with a smile and a slap on the back for everybody.

"We've got to go West for a candidate," he said. "And we have to dramatize our appeal more. Ogden Mills, former Senator David Reed and Representative James Wadsworth are mighty fine men, but they are all from the East and would not carry the appeal to the West that is needed next year."

Richey Starts Rumor.

Four names were mentioned most often along the corridors. They were those of Senator William E. Borah, Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas, Herbert Hoover and Col. Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News. Lawrence Richey, former secretary to Hoover, moved among the Republican leaders, starting rumors that Hoover was getting ready to make an active fight for the nomination.

"Oh, I'm just around here to see some old friends," Richey said when asked about it.

Fletcher received a telegram from Frank E. Gannett, who owns a chain of newspapers in New York, urging adoption of a program calling for an affirmative fight rather than mere negation and criticism of the New Deal. Gannett said the two issues the Republicans murt meet next year are:

1. How can the American economic system be made to function, within the Constitution, so private business can put 10,000,000 back to work?

2. How can the income of agriculture be raised, by constitutional means, so that the wage of 10,500,000 Americans gainfully employed in farming shall be more than $1.39 a day, including AAA benefits, in 1934?

Fund Prospects Good.

Fletcher said the chief problem was one that always faces political parties—money. He added, however, that the reports from "every State are encouraging," but he said no detailed financial statement would be ready for some time.

"The chances of getting a substantial campaign fund are good," he continued. "There will be more to say about that later."

Somebody mentioned that Fletcher had attended the Max Baer-Joe Louis fight in New York last night.

"Did you learn anything about how to conduct a fight up there?" Fletcher was asked. "Did Joe Louis teach you anything?"

"Sure," Fletcher replied. "Short, hard punches."

Staunton Schools Open With 1,775 on Rolls

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Staunton, Va., Sept. 25.—Staunton's public schools opened yesterday with an enrollment of 1,775, but later registrations are expected to bring the number over the 1,865 figure of approximately the same date last year. However, this last figure represents the enrollment three weeks after school opened in 1934. This year's session was delayed by the prevalence of infantile paralysis.

Due to fear of spread of the disease, Staunton's fall festival has been definitely canceled, but the Staunton fair will be held the week of October 21. Originally it was scheduled for Labor Day week.

of action I nthat respect is held to be almost unlimited.

No Link to Embargo.

Mr. Roosevelt's action yesterday was taken under section 2 of the neutrality act, which establishes a permanent licensing system for the manufacture, export and import of arms and munitions, effective November 29. This section, although supplementary to, is not dependent on section 1 of the act, which requires the President until March 1, on the outbreak of war abroad, to proclaim an embargo on arms shipments to the belligerents.

The President defined the term "arms, ammunition and implements of war," as used in section 2 of the act, to embrace the following:

Category.

1. Rifles and carbines using ammunition in excess of 26.5 caliber, and their barrels.

2. Machine guns, automatic rifles, and machine pistols of all calibers, and their barrels.

3. Guns, howitzers and mortars of all calibers, their mountings and barrels.

4. Ammunition for the arms enumerated under 1 and 2 above, i.e., high-power, steel-jacketed ammunition in excess of 26.5 caliber; filled and unfilled projectiles and propellents with a web thickness of .015 inch or greater for the projectiles of the arms enumerated under 3, above.

5. Grenades, bombs, torpedoes and mines, filled or unfilled, and appartus for their use or discharge.

6. Tanks, military armored vehicles and armored trains.

Category II.

Vessels of war of all kinds, including aircraft carriers and submarines.

Category III.

1. Aircraft, assembled or dismantled, both heavier and lighter than air, which are desinged, adapted, and intended for aerial combat by the use of machine guns or of artillery or for the carrying and dropping of bombs, or which are equipped with, or whch by reason of design or construction are prepared for, any of the appliances referred to in paragraph 2, below.

2. Aerial gun mounts and frames, bomb racks, torpedo carriers, and bomb or torpedo release mechanisms.

Category IV.

of a weight in excess of 1 pound 6 ounces (630 grams), using ammunition in excess of caliber 26.5, and ammunition therefor.

Revolvers and automatic pistols

Category V.

1. Aircraft assembled or dismantled, both heavier and lighter than air, other than those included in category III.

2. Propellers or air screws, fuselages, hulls, tail units, and under carriage units.

3. Aircraft engines.

Category VI.

1. Livens projectors and flame throwers.

2. Mustard gas, lewisite, ethyldichlorarsine, and methyldichlorarsine.

Taylor to Face Murder Charge

after the shooting. He was arrested there the next morning.

The Jordan woman lay semi-conscious in the room from shortly after 6 p. m. until midnight. Her groans attracted other roomers who, in turn, summoned police. Ambulances and police, responding to the earlier call by Taylor, were told that "nothing was wrong" and listed the call as a false alarm.

A purported suicide note, found in the room, was apparently in the Jordan woman's own handwriting, the jury was told. It merely said to notify friends and relatives "if something should happen."

The verdict holding Taylor freed Hary P. Frye, of the 600 block of Massachusetts avenue northwest, friend of the dead woman, who had been held pending the coroner's action.

"That verdict is very unjust—I am as innocent of this as any human being could be," Taylor declared when the jury's finding was read to him.

Gliders Gather To Try Soaring In Blue Ridge

Spot Near Luray Is Mecca for Motorless Plane Enthusiasts.

Gliding and soaring enthusiasts from Washington and other cities throughout the East are converging on Big Meadows, Va., for the opening tomorrow morning of a two-week meeting sponsored by the Soaring Society of America.

Located at an elevation of 3,500 feet in the Blue Ridge Mountains, south of Luray, Big Meadows is considered by gliding and soaring experts to be an ideal spot for both novice and expert flying.

The site of the meeting of the motorless aircraft pilots is 2,500 feet above the floor of the surrounding valleys.

The War Department and officials of the National Park Service are co-operating with owners of the gliders in arranging the meet. Camp Fechner, a CCC post, is located near the point from which the motorless craft will be launched.

Among the entrants is Dr. Wolfang Klemperer, an official of the Soaring Society, who will take a four-passenger glider to the meet. It is reported to be the only craft of this type in the country. Lieut. Joseph Koch will be in charge of arrangements during the meet. A half-dozen special prizes are up for competition.

mental principles of democracy," was adopted with cheers.

"Combat all organizations whose purposes are to undermine, sap, overthrow or otherwise destroy the principles of American Government," was the mandate laid down.

Closing immigration for ten years and deportation of foreign agitators, destitute aliens and those who gained entrance into this country illegally, was demanded.

As a corollary, the legion urged compulsory finger printing of all persons, although rejecting a demand from the Michigan delegation that a requirement for indentification cards for all persons be included.

Hand-in-hand with approval of the neutrality resolution adopted by Congress and of a plea for world peace, the legion urged further steps to strengthen this country's military protection.

It reiterated a previous stand for "a national defense strong enough to stay at peace and simultaneously to give us a reasonable chance to protect ourselves in case others forced war upon us.'

The adopted resolution expressed gratification at the recently enacted national defense legislation "after many years of continued and dangerous neglect," and outlined a profrom for the retention, consolidation and expansion of the program "to its logical conclusion."

The Government's efforts to collect delinquent war debts "without further extension or reduction" was hailed by the legion.

Approval also was given to the Government's efforts to negotiate a reciprocal treaty with Canada with a view of eliminating that country's "discriminatory subsides." Protest was made in the same resolution to Great Britain's system of tariff preferentials.

The first floor debate of the convention occurred after presentation of a report by the legion child welfare committee urging a stand be taken in favor of the child labor amendment. The delegates voted to continue legion efforts fo rthe measure.

The last committee to report, that of rehabilitation, asked decentralization of the board of veterans' appeals to facilitate handling of claims, urged the review of all disallowed compensation claims and relaxation of requirements for compensation. Its voluminous report was unanimously approved.

Roosevelt Acts To Spur Works As He Departs

Preliminary Action Upon 4-Billion Allotments Is Take non Trip's Eve.

by April 1 and to 300,000 by June 1. Pointing out that the future of CCC depends on action of Congress, Mr. Roosevelt said he hoped that 300,000 young men could be enrolled for one-year terms each year in the future. Present enrollment is for six months.

The President pointed out that 750,000 young men finish their education each year. He said that of these, 150,000 are not available to the CCC because of physical difficulties or for other reasons. He said he hoped half of the remaining 600,000 would go into the forest organization each year. He added that enrollees would not necessarily have to come from relief rolls but that their financial situation would be considered.

Youths to Get Education.

Discussing the National Youth Administration, which has been severely criticized by educators, President Roosevelt said a major portion of the $50,000,000 allotment will go to help boys and girls to attend college. He said $27,000,000 would go for this purpose.

In addition, he said Dr. John W. Studebaker, commissioner of education, had four or five other projects aimed at improving educational standards. He said these projects will be conducted by trained educators.

Critics of the NYA have complained that its administration is in the hands of persons inexperienced in educational work and work that is not a part of the established system. Dr. Studebaker first suggested the youth program until recently has been permitted to play only a minor part in the fund's administration.

In discussing educational work, President Roosevelt pointed to the large nomber of school houses that have been erected with Government aid.

Crossing Program Slow.

Asked about the grade elimination program, Mr. Roosevelt said it was progressing, but that it was necessarily slow. He said that for the most part he expected contracts for grade elimination to be awarded by December 15, the "deadline" he has set for awarding all contracts. He said an allotment had been made for rural resettlement, but that he could not remember the amount.

A plan for the Government to pay youths to work on farms and thereby teach them practical farming has been put before the Federal committee on apprentice training.

It was worked out by the Georgia committee on apprentice training with the help of State agricultural experts and submitted by D. B. Lasseter, chairman of the State committee.

With winter rapidly approaching, the FERA announced that its Alaska colonists, moved from farms in the Northwest, had 101 houses ready for occupancy and 68 under construction. There are 173 colonists. Transient workers have been aiding in construction. They are expected to return to the United States next month.

Foreign Exchange.

Futher weakness in the Netherlands guilder finally unsettled leading European currencies in relation to the dollar in world exchange dealings yesterday, according to the Associated Press.

The guilder finished off .05 of a cent in New York at 67.55 cents, which is moderately below the point at which it is generally calculated gold can be profitably exported to the United States. This followed weakness in the Nethierlands unit earlier in London.

British balances in late American dealings slid off to end down 1 cent at $4.92. In prior dealings in London a contrary trend has been evident as the dollar lost ground at 4.93 7-16 to the pound.

French francs pursued a more consistent course to finish off .00½ of a cent in New York, after the dollar had improved in Paris at the equivalent of 6.594 cents to the franc.

Swiss francs were .03 of a cent lower in New York at 32.51 cents, while the Italian lira, a controlled currency, improved .00½ of a cent at 8.15½ cents.

Based on the closing rate for the French franc in New York the dollar was valued at premium of 58-100 of 1 per cent, compared with 51-100 Tuesday and 16-100 a month ago.

AIR CONDITIONED HOME HEAT

STEP into an average home where people have been smoking. The air is heavy, stale, vitiated.

Confront the same condition in a home where Delco-Heat Conditionair provides air conditioned heat. Smoke has vanished—air is fresh, invigorating. People are alert instead of lanquid. That's because this unit purifies the air, circulates it, changes it completely every 10 to 15 minutes.

Imagine breathing fresh, pure air like that all through the heating season. What a difference in your health and comfort! Most winter colds, say medical authorities, are caused by overheated homes—by indoor air that's dry and stale and stuffy.

TRUE AIR CONDITIONING

Delco-Heat Conditionair corrects this serious condition. Rooms are never too hot or too cold, but always heated to exactly the right temperature. Instead of being dry as the Sahara, the air is humidified with just the right amount of moisture added for health and comfort. In summer, Delco-Heat Conditionair removes pollen and circulates freshened, invigorating air to every room. Scientific unit construction plus the Delco-Heat method of burning lowest cost domestic fuel make it amazingly economical to operate.

"Venus in Silk" Replaces "Thumbs Up" as First Stage Attraction at National

Viennese Work Boasts Troupe Exceeding 100

Score Is By Robert Stolz; El Brendel for Earle; Theater Notes.

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Contrary to earlier announcement, Eddie Dowling's production of "Thumbs Up" will not be the first living attraction of the season at the National Theater. Originally booked to follow Cecil B. De Mille's screen spectacle of "The Crusades" the week of October 7, "Thumbs Up," featuring Clark and McCullough, Paul Draper, the actor-producer, Eddie Dowling and his wife, Ray Dooley, in addition to numerous others, was canceled yesterday and is to be permanently withdrawn from circulation.

This information reached this column by long-distance phone from Manager Stephen E. Cochran, who dragged himself out of his first, sound, matutinal sleep in New York yesterday noon to do the same to us.

It seems that what the vernacular inelegantly refers to as "the nut"—overhead to youse folks in the counting-room—carried by "Thumbs Up" was a trifle too steep to be liquidated by the number of cash customers presenting themselves at the box office. Not only did the piece carry a high-salaried cast and chorus, but the production was a heavy one, movable only at great transportation cost. In a case like that, there is only one thing to do. So Mr. Dowling did it, or is about to do it.

New One Coming In.

The closing of "Thumbs Up," however, does not mean that the National will be without a so-called legitimate attraction the week of October 7. By a stroke of good fortune, the new booking also is a pretentious musical piece, to be presented under the aegis of Lawrence Schwab—practically a guarantee of its artistic merit.

"Venus in Silk" is the title of the item in question and it originated in Vienna, if I have my recollection on straight and heard Mr. Cochran correctly over the wire. The work was presented in the Municipal Theater in St. Louis last summer under the title of "The Eleventh Rogue," but is being produced for Broadway consumption under the name it bore on the other side.

"Venus in Silk" will enlist a cast and chorus of 100 and will employ an orchestra of 30 pieces. Among the principals who will be seen during the Washington engagement may be mentioned J. Harold Murray, Nancy McCord, Audrey Christie, Joseph Macauley, Gilbert Lamb and John Sheehan, all well and favorably known on the light musical stage.

Adapted by Schwab and O'Keefe.

The American version of the operetta was written by Lawrence Schwab and Lester O'Keefe. The original score by Robert Stolz, the composer of "Two Hearts That Beat in Waltz Time," will, of course, be retained.

The Washington engagement of "Venus in Silk," week after next, will not be a first time on any stage. A week's engagement will be played in Pittsburgh preceding the local booking, so that the Capital will view at least a partially seasoned—"set" I believe is the technical term used in the best scene-shifting circles—production. It will proceed at once to Broadway from the National Theater here.

So now you know.

Harriet Borden, a prominent member of the Willard Players "East Lynne" cast, performing in the auditorium of the National Press Club, left the Capital last week for Cleveland, Ohio, where she will take active part in the organization of a civic theater group. When the production begins its seventh consecutive week tonight, Miss Borden's place will be taken by Catherine McCord, a graduate of the Constance Connor Brown studio of dramatic art.

Up From the Ranks.

Maurice Evans, the London actor who makes his American debut as Romeo to Katharine Cornell's Juliet in the Lyric Theater, Baltimore, Md., on Thursday night, October 10—preliminary to the week's engagement at the National in this city, beginning Monday night, October 14—first appeared on the stage as a child with the Wessex Players in his father's dramatization of Thomas Hardy's "Far From the Madding Crowd."

The Wessex Players were amateurs organized to act homemade stage versions of the Hardy novels.

It is pointed out by the helpful Mr. Ray Henderson that while "Tess of the d'Urbervilles" was seen on the professional stage—Mrs. Fiske played it in America, both on the stage and upon the silent screen—Hardy resisted all inducements to let certain other stories be produced in the professional theater. He, nevertheless, encouraged this native group to adapt his fiction to acting purposes.

Evans, born in the Wessex country, gained his first experience with these players.

El Brendel, the Swedish comedian, noted on both screen and stage, will be the headliner of the vaudeville portion of the program at the Earle Theater the week beginning Friday, October 4, according to announcement made yesterday afternoon by Zone Manager John J. Fayette, of the Warner Brothers interests.

Brendel, as usual, will have as his stage partner, his wife, known professionally as Flo Bert. The pair will present a rapid-fire interval of comedy, featuring, as goes without saying, El's inimitable Swedish dialect—the best on either stage or silver sheet. It is interesting in this connection to note that prior to the Great War, El Brendel was a German dialect comedian. He switched to Swedish during the Big Fuss for the same reason that sauerkraut became "liberty cabbage." He was born in Philadelphia, Pa.

The screen attraction for the week of October 4 will be "Special Agent," co-starring Bette Davis and George Brent, an excellent picture that was briefly appraised in this space on Monday morning.

Guild Adopts New System.

After a year of success with the open try-out system of casting its productions, the Drama Guild of Washington has definitely adopted this method as a permanent practice, thus emulating the Pasadena Playhouse, the Rochester Little Theater and other similar organizations of note.

With the expansion of its season to a roster of six full-length plays, the Drama Guild this season will require a greater number of actors, technicians and designers than ever before.

Tryouts for the first production, George Bernard Shaw's "You Never Can Tell," will be held on Thursday and Friday evenings, September 26 and 27, in room 22, Corcoran Hall, George Washington University, Twenty-first street, between G and H, at 8 o'clock. Denis E. Connell, director of the production, will be in charge.

Prompted by the increasing number of outstanding films that are being produced, the Committee for the Advancement of the Screen has been formed in New York City. Deems Taylor, Mme. Lucrezia Bori, Giovanni Martinelli, Mrs. James Reed Laidlaw, Mme. Lotte Lehman, Richard Watts, jr., and others of prominence in the social, musical and literary world are members of the committee. The group will make special efforts to promote public interest in, and appreciation of, the finer screen productions. The first picture to benefit by this attention will be the Warners' production of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," supervised by Max Reinhardt. Other productions to enjoy the sponsorship of this discriminating group will be "Romeo and Juliet," "Peter Ibbetson" and "Anthony Adverse"—provided, of course, that they live up to their advance notices and inherent potentialities.

Everlasting Enigma Note.

I am still wondering if Joe Louis, the marrying master of mayhem, can take it.

You clout him, I'm busy here at the typewriter!

Miss Warren to Speak.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Leesburg, Va., Sept. 25.—Miss Gertrude Warren, of the Extension Service, Department of Agriculture, Washington, will be the principal speaker at County Achievement Day exercises in the Leesburg High School auditorium October 4, according to an announcement made today by Miss Karle Bundy, county demonstration agent. Prizes in the flower and canning contests will be awarded in the morning and a style show held in the afternoon.

"Any Old Porthole in a Storm!"

This may be a studio, papier-mache porthole, but at any rate, it gives the impression that Ruby Keeler is "sailing, sailing, over the bounding main" in a United States battlewagon, precisely as she is supposed to do in "Shipmates Forever," the Naval Academy subject that was filmed in large part at Annapolis last June. Dick Powell once again is cast opposite Miss Keeler, who in private life, of course, is Mrs. Al Jolson. Referring to our topline, the probability is that the only storms these two will encounter will be storms of applause.

'Red Head' Is Somber Drama Of Boy's Life

French Production at the Belasco Is Splendidly Acted and Directed.

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"RED HEAD." Pathe-Nathan picturization of the novel, "Poil de Carotte" ("Carrot Top") by Jules Renard, featuring Robert Lynen, Harry Bauer, Catherine Fonteney and Christiane Dor, with Louis Gouthier, Maxime Fromiot, Simon Asbry, Mme. Martha and Collette Segall. Directed by Julien Duvivier. Reviewed Tuesday afternoon.

Acted with that utter naturalness that makes each character in the play a very real and believable person, and staged with that superb realism that strengthens the illusion of actuality, "Red Head," currently on view at the Belasco Theater, takes rank with those infrequent films which by the sheer honesty of their effort command the respectful attention of all discriminating playgoers.

Adapted from Jules Renard's novel of "Poil de Carotte," or "Carrot Top," as it would be in English, "Red Head" relates the tragic story of the youngest and seemingly unwanted son of a middle-class family in rural France. Sensitive, diffident, misunderstood by his father and scorned by his mother, "Carrot Top," as she herself dubbed him in a moment of gleeful disparagement, built up in his own immature mind a colossal consciousness of his position of despised isolation in his own household.

On the father's part, it was indifference and a magnified preoccupation with his hunting in the fields and woods and the petty politics of the little village of which he eventually beomes mayor; on the part of the beady-eyed mother, a convenient outlet for all of the spitefulness, the vindictiveness and the exquisite cruelty engendered by a supreme selfishness and an abortive "love" for Ernestine and Felix, her two older children and the real renegades of the family.

Thus upon poor little "Carrot Top" are heaped all of the drudgery, all of the distasteful errands, all of the fearful excursions into the terrifying blackness of the night that might so easily have been divided among the three. Even at table, the spindly-legged little shaver is denied so much as a taste of the simple delicacies he loves best.

Only in the companionship of an uncouth but kindly uncle does he ever find happiness. Here he indulges a pathetic juvenile affection for a tiny tot of the countryside, even to the simulation of a "state" wedding march, to the tune of the sympathetic avuncular music box, with only the cows, the pigs, the chickens and the ducks as witnesses.

This is one of the most effective and most touching episodes in the picture, and even it is broken up by the eagle-eyed and, persistent persecution of the acidulous and unnatural mother.

When his father, on the election day that finds him mayor, forgets a promise of a "grand party" and has no time for his small son, "Carrot Top" in the desperate depths of his loneliness, seeks a tragic deliverence from the unbearable anguish of a child's broken heart. It is this stunning revelation of the lad's state of mind and heart that brings his father to his senses and opens a brighter vista for the boy who came too late into his parents' lives.

There is little enlivenment in the somber theme upon which the major movement of the story is based. It is a tale of the tragedy of youth, but one that is made great by the skill with which it utilizes the commonplace, the simple and yet the fundamental problefs of sensitive and inarticulate boyhood. If there be a flaw in the development of the drama's premise it is that "Carrot Top" is made to attach graver importance to minor incidents than a youngster of his age would conjure up.

The title role is played with exceptional grasp and engagingly boyish simplicity by Robert Lynen, a tousle-headed kid, who is the living twin of the Wesley "Freckles" Barry who first crashed the screen with Mary Pickford in Marshall Neilan's production of Jean Webster's "Daddy Long-Legs," back in the old silent days of a decade and a half ago.

His father and mother are played with unerring skill by Harry Bauer, a character actor of the first rank, and Catherine Fonteney, of the Comedie Francais. Louis Gouthier is fine as the kindly uncle and Christiane Dor makes a wholly sympathetic and likable character of Annette, the slavey of the Lepic household and "Carrot Top's" only friend in the hours of his bitterest trials.

The Pathe News, a new release in the "Adventures of a Newsreel Cameraman" series, "Man's Mania for Speed," and a Terrytoon cartoon comedy, 'King Looney XIV," one of the feeblest of the lot, are the supplementaries of a feature that is to be highly commended, despite the brevity of English subtitles that fail to express more than a fragment of the full import of the voluble French dialogue which embodies subtleties that now are completely lost to those not schooled in the language.

MARTHA ORR

Broadway

By Ed Sullivan

The Dawn Patrol.

New York, Sept. 25.

THE Baer-Louis combat has been vastly exciting, but for sheer melodrama, it didn't equal the return fight between Dempsey and Tunney at Chicago . . . the difference was in the setting, for the Chicago fight was held on September 22, 1927, and if you recall contemporary history, you'll recall that this date coincided with the peak of prohibition . . . illegal gentlemen were reaping illegal fortunes with illegal but tasty beer, and as a result, the Dempsey-Tunney fight was staged in a setting of beer barons . . . Some of the beer barons allied themselves with Tunney and Billy Gibson, other beer barons allied with Dempsey and Leo P. Flynn . . . the pulling and hauling between the rival groups at Chicago gave an excitingly sinister background to the entire proceedings, and up to five minutes before the bell sounded at Soldier's Field, emissaries were conducting financial negotiations with every referee licensed to operate in an Illinois ring . . . If Ethiopia had all the "gats" and "rods" that were in Soldier's Field that night, Selassie's armament problem would be completely solved.

• • • •

The Dempsey-Tunney fight was typical of the era of prohibition, and looking back on it, you're happy that this insane period washed itself up . . . It was a fantastic period in American history . . . Even the gate receipts of $2,600,000 were a testimonial to the insanity of the citizenry . . . Eight years later, we are not half so crazy, if you can judge by the Baer-Louis gross of $1,000,000 . . . At the Chicago fight, we pointed out to each other the great beer barons of that predatory period . . . At this fight, we pointed out to each other the G-men . . . The distinction between the ringside celebrities of 1927 and the ringside celebs of 1935 tells the whole story in a nutshell, and indeed spells out the drastic change that has occurred in the American social order . . . For purposes of reference, the Dempsey-Tunney fight of 1927 is a peg upon which historians can hang their conclusions of prohibition, and the Baer-Louis fight is part and parcel of the reconstruction period which followed.

• • • •

Best of the fight stories stirred into circulation by the breeze of Baer's blows is the one about the two second-raters fighting the main bout at a small club . . . At the end of the first round the cluck who had taken a pounding staggered to his corner, ready to quit . . . "Don't be nuts," screamed his manager, "why, he ain't laid a glove on you." . . . He lasted out the second round, walked stiffly back to his stool and, before he could protest, the manager whispered: "Didn't I tell you? He didn't even lay a hand on yuh!" . . . The third round was particularly trying for the battered second-rater . . . Gloves rattled off him like buckshot off the brim of a straw hat, and he was just able to get to the corner under his own power . . . Looking up at his manager through swollen eyes, the chump screamed: "I know, I know. He ain't laying a glove on me, but keep your eye on the referee, because somebody in that ring is giving me a hell of a lacing."

• • • •

Not many columns ago, I wrote that the Gold Rush had returned to the Stem, that the street was crowded with people buying night club and theater entertainment . . . The piece attracted quite a bit of attention . . . Advertisers asked permission to reprint it, and great corporations broadcast it through the country as an index of better times . . . It was a hopeful note sounded at a moment that was psychologically correct . . . The Baer-Louis fight emphasized my optimism . . . Broadway, for five days, has revelled in tremendous business . . . The Gold Rush turned into a stampede of silver dollars, and New York's cash boxes are stuffed with money . . . Happy days are here again.

• • • •

Notes: Ricardo Cortez and Dick Barthelmess were two of the big coast names at the ringside . . . They buffet-supped with Dorothy di Frasso and a group of us before rushing off to the stadium . . . Few moving picture stars came in from the coast to see it, despite early announcements that half of Hollywood would be at the ringside . . . Funniest prebattle sight was a group of out-of-towners who were unable to get ringside seats . . . Standing at Fiftieth street and Broadway, they were focusing a pair of field glasses, and as I passed one of them said: "Here, you look. Figure that Baer is standing right at the Paramount Building, near the clock." . . . Eleanor Powell, Beatrice Lillie, Ethel Waters and Herb Williams, backstage at the Winter Garden, tuned in on the fight over a balky radio . . . Ticket specs, caught at the last minute with good seats, had to dispose of them at face value rather than get stuck.

Staunton Schools Open With 1,775 on Rolls

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Staunton, Va., Sept. 25.—Staunton's public schools opened yesterday with an enrollment of 1,775, but later registrations are expected to bring the number over the 1,865 figure of approximately the same date last year. However, this last figure represents the enrollment three weeks after school opened in 1934. This session was delayed due to the development, three weeks ago, of the first and only case of infantile paralysis in this city.

Due to fear of spread of the disease, Staunton's fall festival has been definitely cancelled, but the Staunton fair will be held the week of October 21. Originally it was scheduled for Labor Day week.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.
Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Time For A Warning.

A year ago the Federal Reserve Advisory Council stated that "no real or permanent recovery can be had * * * until the country has been placed upon a sound financial basis." It then emphasized the necessity of balancing the budget, reducing government outlays, and avoiding inflation. This week the council met and adjourned without passing any warning or admonitory resolutions, although budgetary balance appears to be further away than ever, governmental outlays are rising instead of falling, and inflation is certainly no less a danger than it was a year ago.

Following a joint meeting with the board of governors of the Reserve system, it was stated that the council members were extremely optimistic regarding the business outlook. This change in attitude is certainly not warranted by the recent upturn in business activity, despite striking and numerous evidences of improvement. Sound fiscal policies are no less important today than they were when trade and production indices were at lower levels. On the contrary, warnings are particularly timely when superficial observers of business trends are predicting a return to problemless prosperity.

On the same day Prof. Melvin T. Copeland, of the Harvard Business School, opportunely expressed some of the doubts and warnings that the advisory council neglected to utter. He did not waste time repeating the obvious, but probed beneath the surface in an effort to discover the reasons for the current upturn and the chances that gains will be permanent. Predicting that a substantial increase in business activity will develop during the coming year, Dr. Copeland fears a runaway rise in the cost of living, with no end in sight while Government expenditures exceed revenues. In other words, he, like every well-informed student of finance, knows that continued deficit financing will lead ultimately to uncontrollable inflation, taking the form of a catastrophic rise in the prices of articles of necessity.

There is only one way to prevent this otherwise inevitable development—that is to reduce expenditures until covered by income and at the same time take steps to prevent a too sudden expansion of credit. As Dr. Copeland says, "When prices finally are soaring, high cost of living commissions, anti-profiteering campaigns, and the other superficial attacks on the problem that always come in the later stages of such a price surge will have little effect. Action is needed now, not several years hence."

If the country is to hold what has been gained and go ahead to attain a solid and lasting prosperity, business must be given a chance to expand naturally without being subjected to the constant menace of inflation. Efforts must be made to reduce the excessively large volume of unemployment by increasing opportunities for productive work and reducing the losses that result from industrial conflicts. In short, the growing optimism regarding the future should not blind us to the existence of a large number of knotty problems that have to be solved before we can afford to become intelligently confident for the future.

Reunion.

Had the scene been arranged by an accomplished playwright, the meeting of Thomas Mooney and Warren Billings could not have been more dramatic. It seemed to have been staged by one who knew the pure literary value of understatement. It was lacking in vigorous emotion and all trace of hysteria was absent. Yet just for this reason there was an epic quality to this reunion, in San Francisco's Hall of Justice, of two one-time friends who have spent 19 long years apart, behind separate prison walls.

These two aging men, each a major character in the great, unfinished proletarian play, once had their names linked together continually. Each was convicted of participation in the 1916 Preparedness Day bombing in San Francisco. Each was sent his way, 19 years ago, to pay the debt of this crime. And as the years passed the name of Mooney spread around the world, until it became almost a symbol of revolutionary martyrdom. But the name of Billings, the weaker of the two, steadily dropped from sight.

So the two men faced each other, after 19 years. They seemed, said a reporter, momentarily overcome. Then each said simply, "Hello." And then, there in the Hall of Justice, the bitterness and discouragement of those lost years evolved into simple words, direct and from the heart. "We've had differences," said Mooney, adding, "But we're still friends, aren't we, boy?" And that was all.

A Lull In Europe.

The past few days have seen a perceptible lessening of the tension in Europe. Nothing is solved yet, and no step toward the securing of peace has been taken which could not be quickly and emphatically reversed. But the shift from threat and counter-threat to complicated diplomatic maneuvering is an encouraging sign, no matter how difficult it may be to evolve a generally satisfactory formula of settlement for the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

When specific items are detached from the whole confusing picture the progress made is seen to be considerable. Ethiopia has accepted, and Italy has not irrevocably repudiated, the "basis of negotiation" submitted by the Committee of five a week ago. Equally important, both the British and Italian governments have now issued formal statements to the effect that there are no serious differences between them. This means that Italy has agreed not to regard a concentration of British naval strength, tacitly approved by the League of Nations, as an act of individual hostility by Great Britain. It is, therefore, a triumph for the League theory that sanctions should be regarded as international police action, no more personal than the surveillance of any community police in a disturbed area.

If these concessions on the part of Mussolini are followed by one further step the ground for optimism will become really solid. A month ago Ethiopia requested that a neutral commission be sent to the boundaries of Eritrea and Italian Somaliland, charged with the duty of defining aggression in the event of any provocative "border incident." Emperor Haile Selassie has now renewed that request at Geneva. During the delicate period of negotiation which is now foreshadowed the chief danger is some foray which immediately would be followed by punitive Italian action. Clearly the League should accede to the Ethiopian request that precautionary measures be taken against this danger.

On the other hand, every disposition shown by Italy for peaceful solution should be followed by the most sympathetic consideration of her claims and grievances. It would be as fatal for peace to deny that Mussolini has any case as it would be to tolerate the satisfaction of his claims through military action. So far Geneva, directed by British policy, has preserved a beautiful balance in extending the olive branch with one hand, the sword with the other. But obviously any Italian gesture toward the former hand should be met by the League half-way.

The expression "by the League" in this case means in practice by Great Britain and France. They are the member-states which had most before the war, and took most afterward. They are the nations which must be prepared to make sacrifices as a counterpart to the restraints which they seem prepared to enforce upon Italy now. Restriction of aggression never can be established as an enduring principle until it is coupled with revision of existing settlements in behalf of the underprivileged.

This responsibility was recognized both by the settlement plan of the Committee of Five and in the historic speech made to the League Assembly by Sir Samuel Hoare on September 11. In advocating a redistribution of the "preponderant advantages" possessed by certain nations, the British foreign minister emphasized that the issue could not be given consideration "in an atmosphere of war and threatenings of war."

That is as indisputable as the fact that the atmosphere will be one of war until equitable revision is made practical politics. To prevent war with one hand, and really grapple with the forces inciting it with the other, is the problem now taxing the best statesmanship of the world.

Obiter Dicta.

Holders of defaulted Cuban bonds who sent Senators Nye and Wheeler to Havana to plead their cause have taken exception to two statements made by The Post in discussing that anomalous sideline for apostles of isolation. In a letter appearing on the page opposite, Mr. Albert F. Coyle, secretary for the Bondholders' Committee for Republic of Cuba Bonds, rather sharply chastizes us for referring a month ago to Cuba as a turnip from which no blood can be wrung. We can only reply that it is a delight to read Mr. Coyle's evidence of improved conditions in Cuba.

It is, of course, a well-known fact that Cuba is gradually regaining some of the prosperity she enjoyed in happier days. In this statement Mr. Coyle is supported by a report this week from Ambassador Caffery. The value of American exports to Cuba during the first eleven months under the reciprocal trade agreement, he says, increased 60 per cent. Concessions on Cuban exports to this country have stimulated the island's purchasing power and reinforced "the entire Cuban economic structure, as evidenced by the noticeable improvement in indices of employment, trade and finance."

Ambassador Caffery goes so far as to say that "many debtors have begun to liquidate old accounts." Whether the Cuban government is in a position to resume payments on its defaulted bonds, however, we do not presume to know. That is not the focal point of interest to which our attention was called by the activities of these two admittedly liberal Senators in Havana.

What Mr. Coyle is particularly eager to impress upon us is that Messrs. Nye and Wheeler are really efficient interventionists and not mere "window-dressing for a New York bondholders' committee." He wishes it understood that "the two Senators in question have done more than almost any other member of this committee to induce the Cuban government to meet its obligations to thousands of American citizens * * *" This candid defense of the two senatorial bill collectors clearly sharpens the question we sought to raise: Why should any two Senators, and these two eminent anti-imperialists in particular, assume the responsibility of representing a private committee of capitalists in bringing pressure upon a foreign government? That is the question, Mr. Coyle, which still remains unanswered.

Promise And Fulfillment.

To sit behind a desk in Washington and order 3,500,000 jobs created is a gesture that any bureaucrat can make. Actually to find to create that number of jobs in a brief period, and keep the men usefully employed without wasting enormous sums of money, is a very different matter. Since the latter task has now been assigned to local WPA administrators, it is not surprising to find them taking the leadership in criticism of the work-relief program.

In New York, where the program is much farther advanced than in any other city, Administrator Johnson has frankly expressed his skepticism of the whole scheme. A 20 per cent performance of the ambition to place 70,000 men per day for the next six weeks is all that he expects. Having inaugurated what amounts to approximately a 3-hour day for WPA employes, the general concludes that it would be far better to use the money thus frittered away for substantial public improvements and to keep the unemployed temporarily on direct relief.

Commissioner Allen, WPA administrator for the District, has brought forth a different complaint which leads to the same end. Wages are paid, not in proportion to family needs, but according to a rigid schedule. Common laborers with large families, he says, find it utterly impossible to "get by" on $45 per month. Consequently, Mr. Allen feels that the inadequately compensated should be subsidized, which means keeping them on the relief rolls.

If part of the Government's new army of 3-hour-per-day men continues to draw relief benefits, in addition to their wages, what gain is made by their shift from odd jobs under the FERA to boondoggling under the WPA? In some cases, Mr. Hopkins' program fails to provide adequate relief. On the whole, its projects have little or no social value. It is all too apparent that the WPA is running around in circles with no clear conception of what it should do and a still more muddled idea of what can be done in the field of creating employment.

It would be well for Commissioner Allen to remember that the benefits provided by the unemployment insurance act can not exceed $15 per week. That is considerably less than the "security wage" for skilled workers. Would he also supplement this insurance compensation by relief funds? That, of course, would mark the beginning of its breakdown as an alternative to the dole. It is time for officials, both national and local, to stop thinking in terms of what would be ideal and to cut the relief pattern from the cloth at hand. For soon or late the policy of balancing these outlays with current income must be adopted, and the longer such adjustments are postponed the greater will be the wrench of the transition to a sound fiscal basis.

If the present befuddled scheme to pay more generous doles under the guise of putting men to work a few hours per day were not operating right under our eyes it would be unbelievable. That it will be a complete failure there is no longer any doubt. The tragedy is that when the collapse is finally admitted billions of dollars will have been wasted and it will be the more difficult to obtain revenue for a constructive relief policy.

An Englishman, on a lecture tour of the United States, says Americans don't know how to use their leisure. When English lecturers visit this country they invariably make the mistake of judging all Americans by the few who attend their lectures.

We hope no party puts in its platform next year a plank advocating reduction in taxes. Time was when that was a pretty good gag, but for some years now it has been exceedingly unfunny.

The way to get hitchhikers off the highways is to leave them on the highways.

Another trouble with the country today is that too many are sitting in grumble seats.

Why Restore NRA?

From the New York Sun.

On the eve of adjournment Congress learned that President Roosevelt still hopes to revive the NRA or some similar means of controlling trade and industry. The President wrote to Senator Harrison and Representative Doughton suggesting that committees of the Senate and the House formulate for the next session bills that will preserve "permanently to the Nation such social and economic advantages as we have gained through previous emergency enactments." He also said that the skeleton of the NRA which remains is engaged on a study of the results obtained under the recovery act.

Business had passed judgment on the NRA long before the Supreme Court decided that the act was unconstitutional. The codes and the frequent changes in rules for applying the codes had caused confusion in many industries; violations had led to lawsuits; conflicts had arisen between large business enterprises and small enterprises.

Ever since the present Administration came into office the deadening influence on business has been the uncertainty growing out of a series of Federal experiments in economic planning. The Supreme Court cleared the air of much of that uncertainty and thus opened the way for business to plan ahead for its own recovery, unshackled by rules imposed from Washington.

Sidings For Slow Drivers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Strickland Gillilan and Westbrook Pegler are probably right in saying that the worst hazard of the highway is the nitwit driver. Yet the ultraslow driver, while not necessarily a noodle-head at all can be quite as dangerous as the plain moron, at least on narrow arteries like Defense highway. The slow-driver menace might be curbed a bit by taking a step which would at the same time make work for many idle hands for months to come, at little cost for materials.

On those narrow roads the addlepated driver, to whom Mr. Gillilan refers, is prompted to do his absolute worst by the antics of the slow driver—the lovelorn squire and his mate, eager for country air and ogling, but thrifty of mileage; the doddering octogenarian, clutching the wheel to his bosom; the heavy duty van or truck driver, or the nervous matron, reducing her tonnage with the clattering cadence of her 1921 touring car.

Behind such a snailish pilot a score of other cars soon crowd up, with the jackass drivers looking for a chance to pass, then passing, with horns quacking and passengers glowering, jamming brakes to dodge oncoming speeders, cutting larkishly in and out of the right lane, and throwing the entire line of sane motorists into hysterics. Any Sabbath afternoon on any two-lane road displays this scenario as a fixed feature of the sport of tourism, with a bad accident every so often. The slow drivers are partly to blame for such doings.

One answer is to broaden these narrow highways to full three or four lane width, but that is costly, and often ineffective, for the slow driver dotes on the middle of the road, no matter how ample the concrete at his disposal. As a better solution, why not build, say every two to five miles along such roads a 100-foot hard surface siding or short detour, leading out of and back into the main highway, at a point where the siding would be plainly visible from a distance?

By simpler regimentation than obedience to traffic lights and with the help of a few cruising patrolmen any driver whose pace is below a certain minimum, or who has caused a long string of cars to back up behind him, could be induced to turn into the next such siding, and wait there just a moment while all the faster cars move promptly ahead once more. GEORGE DOCK, Jr.
Washington, Sept. 23.

"Doggone Unkind."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It strikes me that to Westbrook Pegler a great deal of latitude is given for the expression of his opinions on men and matters.

Look at his story in your issue of September 23! What he says about "Herbert Hoover on the Constitution" is doggone unkind. Mr. Hoover looks like a Man o' War in the probable field of starters in the Republican derby of 1936.

Such utterances as Mr. Pegler's would be lese majeste or treason in most journals opposed to the New Deal policies.

However, all levity aside. The Post should be commended for its liberality in thus permitting its contributors to write with so much honesty and candor.

Pegler never will thrive by fawning, and no one should complain if he occasionally tears a hole in a stuffed shirt.

More power to his trenchant pen.
CHARLES O. PIERCE.

Controlled Capitalism.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial "For Continued Improvement" in The Post of September 21 has just been read. It is a mixture of fairness and one-sidedness. The advice to the chamber of commerce is pertinent and wholesome, but the implication that the leading nations of Europe are not achieving recovery through governmental control, such as is represented by the New Deal, indicates lack of information of a desire to evade the reality.

As a matter of fact, the European countries generally regarded as leaders have gone much further in governmental control of business than has the present Federal Administration. This fact is known to many people with whom I come in contact. It is confirmed by reliable reports and descriptions published by responsible officials of those countries. A letter I received from a prominent American citizen who has spent some three months in Europe, visiting some eight or nine different countries and writing from London, says:

"Very evident is the fact that all European countries have gone much further in governmental control and regulation of business than the present Administration has done in the United States. In France, Germany, Italy, and doubtless in many other countries all prices—both those paid producers and those which may be charged consumers—are fixed by public authority. In central Europe a capitalistic organization of industry continues, but it is a capitalism controlled by a political group."

The constructive program you invite business men to offer the country must have truth and not private profit as its chief motive, for no other incentive or driving force will result in setting industrial leaders free. The public is out for facts, the only reliable milestones on the road leading to truth, and the press as well as industry should lead and not trail in the procession. O. J. SHUSTER.
Clarendon, Va., Sept. 21.

Roasted Starlings.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An article in your September 21 issue, on starlings, said Clifford Lanham, District superintendent of trees and parking, "scanned a memorandum which detailed his contemplated $14,317.52 drive against starlings for the 1935-36 season." It said he plans using an army of relief workers with balloons and pebble-filled cans to scare them away from their roosting places.

But why merely scare them away to other places to breed, multiply and increase and later return in larger numbers? Why not shoot, trap, eletrocute or kill outright these sharp-billed, fruit-pecking, fighting destroyers of our smaller, better native birds?

Thousands of sportsmen buy high-priced licenses to hunt and kill our poor, cooing doves and harmless, useful little partridges; trudging many weary miles through high tangled weeds, briars and bushes, over muddy fields fenced with barbed wire.

Why not invite them to shoot and eat these pestiferous invasive starlings and even pay them a cent a head premium for doing it? Some epicures say their meat is better than that of doves or partridges. They could be much easier shot with good air rifles or B. B. shot rifles and much less traveling.
D. WEBSTER GROH.

Nye, Wheeler And Cuban Bonds.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: My attention has just been called to an editorial in The Post of August 31, last, entitled "Junket With a Moral."

This editorial contains two very fundamental misstatements of fact which I shall ask you to correct editorially at the earliest opportunity.

You state that Senators Nye and Wheeler "undertake to use their influence to wring blood from the turnip that is present-day Cuba." It so chances that Cuba is now experiencing the greatest prosperity it has had for years, thanks largely to the very favorable trade treaty which she negotiated last August with our Department of State and which competent authorities assert has increased her income by not less than $50,000,000 a year. The second factor is the sugar equalization act adopted by the last Congress, which favors Cuba with such a generous sugar quota that both Puerto Rico and Hawaii have protested against it. The benefits of this quota to Cuba are evident when it is borne in mind that she obtains nearly twice the price for sugar sold in this country under the quota as for sugar sold by her to her European customers.

Furthermore, the Cuban government is now collecting in special public works taxes, specifically pledged by Cuban law and by covenant in the defaulted public works bonds as security for the American investors therein, an amount over 4½ times the required service charges on the bonds. Yet, instead of paying her just obligations with these pledged funds, the Cuban government is willfully violating this trust by wrongfully diverting these funds to other purposes, not the least of which is a military establishment consuming approximately one-third of the entire income of the government.

You further state that "the Senators are only window-dressing for a New York bondholders' committee." On the contrary, the two Senators in question have done more than almost any other member of this committee to induce the Cuban government to meet its obligations to thousands of American citizens who in good faith lent their savings to the island republic. Indeed, they and the late Senator Bronson Cutting, the original chairman of the committee, will be largely responsible for the ultimate settlement this committee effects with the Cuban government on behalf of the American investors. It is, therefore, both very unfair and grossly inaccurate to ascribe to them the mere function of "window-dressing."

We are confident that a paper with the high editorial standard of The Post will be quick to make condign correction of these misstatements in an early issue of your paper. ALBERT F. COYLE.
Secretary, Bondholders Committee for Republic of Cuba Bonds.

The Post Impressionist

One Of The Stars Of Mons.

Post Office, Thursday.

WELL before the threat of a new world-wide disaster began perceptibly to darken international horizons, the leading personalities of the World War of 1914-1918 were leaving this stage that we call our life. Woodrow Wilson died and Georges Eugene Benjamin Clemenceau, the Earl of Oxford and Asquith, Marshal Haig; although Lloyd George and Gen. Pershing remained alive and vigorous, the list was long ago long. We now learn that it was lengthened the other day by a death in Southampton, England.

The scene was set at the stables of a police station.

The venerable age of the central figure was 26

His name was, fittingly, Warrior.

He was a horse.

* * *

So far as the Post-Impressionist is informed, Warrior was the last surviving equine veteran of the famous Retreat from Mons.

By 1914, the dashing days of the charger had disappeared. In actual action, the old-fashioned cavalry mount was becoming almost as much of an anachronism as the heavily laden steed of the steel-plated knight. The armored tank was about to appear as a modern version of the armored horse. Many a critic was predicting that airplanes must soon render all cavalry useless even as a means of skirmish reconnaissance.

Nevertheless, there still were battle horses: battle horses of sorts. Tradition alone was powerful enough to see to that.

For his part, the Post-Impressionist became thoroughly aware of this, in the earliest days of the War. Housed in the North Riding of Yorkshire, we contributed three horses to the British Army.

There was Bonny. Of course, we had already turned her away at private sale—the more shame to us, for she was as loyal a mare as ever lived—but her new stable neighbored ours and, although we spent her salesprice, we never lost a sense of ownership in her.

Then there was a daughter of hers, a dangerous bay, in our own stalls. And there was the gray stallion Squire.

One bright morning, a brighter cavalry-officer appeared, saying he had taken Bonny, must take her offspring and Squire. He gave us a piece of paper which, acknowledging his mission, could be cashed—later.

He said: "These horses are for service with the Scots Greys. We have to have gray horses for the Scots Greys—naturally, it's a tradition.

The Post-Impressionist pointed out that only one of his horses was gray.

"Oh," said the officer, "a little paint-dust will fix the other." He said the gray paint-dust would be applied in England—because of tradition: because of camouflage requirements, it would be removed, two days later, in Flanders, and a khaki paint-dust applied.

Although men's chances were slim in the late World War, horses' chances were slimmer. The mechanization of conflict was still incomplete, so some horses were needed—or so some authorities thought. Nevertheless, largely because that mechanization had gone very far, the average life of a war-horse at the front was something under three weeks.

And yet, somehow, Warrior survived even the gruelling Mons Retreat. He came through, and he came home. He had received a load of shrapnel near his heart. That load's successful removal was accounted a triumph of veterinary surgery.

Warrior became the property of a Miss Hilda Moore. She gave him to the Southampton police force for the rest of his natural life—provided that, once each year during Miss Moore's own tenure of existence he be conducted to the lawn of her house, where she would make him the guest of honor at a formal party. These parties continued until her death a short while since.

The British government conferred the Mons Star to the men of Mons; the Ex-Service Men's Association of Southampton has special medals of its own for its every member; it conferred one of these on Warrior.

Now his hoofs are to be preserved, mounted, presented to that association.

Beyond the few we have here recorded, the source of our information supplies no battle details concerning Warrior, none of the deeds he did. We don't know so much as the name or number of his outfit.

Yet what of it?

Doesn't mankind rightly honor a human centenarian who has nothing save his age to recommend him?

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

The Sucker Is Here Again.

YOU are now listening to the most reassuring sound that has been heard in the land since a whisper from Samuel Insull was a roar from the clouds—long before the midget sat on J. P. Morgan's knee.

I refer to the shrill, anguished squawk of the trimmed sucker who paid the speculator $100 or more for a ringside ticket for the million-dollar prizefight and discovered himself exiled to the end seat of a rickety pew back of the flagpole in the Yankee Stadium. There was no market for prizefight tickets at $100 each when the long panic was on, and the cry of the enraged customer, like the mating call of the bullfrog in spring, though harsh and noisy, is a harbinger of better times. And it is to be hoped that a really furious ticket scalping scandal will now ensue, followed by one of those old-fashioned searching probes, for there could be no more convincing proof that the pump at last has been primed and begun to pump.

Ticket scalping scandals, followed by searching probes, do not occur during hard times. The last good one was almost eight years ago, before that awful day in Wall Street when the house discovered that there wasn't enough money in the box to pay off the chips which were piling up around the table.

• • • •

IT WOULD be a foolish abuse of sympathy to feel sorry for the trimmed prizefight customer, although he is due some gratitude for piping the first notes of prosperity. The sucker, as on all past occasions, was warned repeatedly that he could not expect an even break. It was pointed out in plain, dumb words of one syllable that the Baer-Lewis prizefight was being conducted under the personal direction of Mr. Mike Jacobs, the most proficient ticket speculator in New York, and that the overage, or margin between the box office price and the speculator's price, has always been an important item of revenue in the production of big prizefights. It was further pointed out that Mr. Jacobs' mother did not raise any feeble minded children.

The trimmed sucker is not hurt as badly as his outcries would suggest, because any time a customer spends $25 or $100 or more for a ticket to a prizefight he doesn't need the money. Prize-fight money is extra money, for no man ever goes without food or denies his family the necessities of life to buy a seat from which to witness a struggle of the lithe, lean bodies. And the fact that the customers were able to contribute a million dollars at the box office, to say nothing of the incalculable overage at the speculators' stores, shows convincingly that there is extra money on the loose again in large quantities.

• • • •

THE customer should know by this time, for he has been told often enough, that he positively can not expect to obtain actual ringside seats for a million-dollar prize fight at the box office. That is plain, and there is never any exception.

Because before he can hope to be served the Best People must be taken care of. The Best People include the prominent statesmen of the entire country who use their brethren of like political faith and prominence on the site of the struggle to obtain seats for themselves and their parties. There are then the local politicians and the celebrities, who are a mixed group but important.

And there are finally the newspapers and the advertisers, both local and from out of town, as well as the big business firms whose executives wish to entertain their customers. All these must be down in front. After these have been seated in their thousands in the rows more or less near to the ring, the remoter ringside seats are placed on sale to the common customer either at the box office or in the speculators' stores. It always has been so, and it always will be so, but the common customer never will learn to believe what he is told in the utmost sincerity.

• • • •

IT is unreliably estimated that the total expenditure for this prize fight, including the cost of travel, quarters, corkage and all incidental frivolity, will cause a turnover of from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000. This is a shocking extravagance over a primitive spectacle, but certainly it has the effect of circulating money without resort to inflation or increase of the public debt, and the whole amount is less than the cost of one fair-sized battle in Ethiopia. And there is this further to be said in extenuation—that although the trimmed suckers will howl as though mortally hurt, the worst damage resulting from such an outing is only a black eye or a scrambled nose.

Mr. Roosevelt would be fortunate if he could translate the squawk of the trimmed sucker into a campaign slogan. For it means "Happy Days Are Here Again."

A Suffering Poet

By William Lyon Phelps

STEPHEN PHILLIPS was born in England, July 28, 1868, and died December 9, 1915.

I do not know of any poet who has suffered so much from excessive praise. When his volume of poems appeared in 1897 many British critics lost their heads; enthusiasm was rampant and by many Phillips was compared to Milton. Yet although he died young, he almost survived his reputation. Generally the public waits until after a man's death to express a concerted modification of praise; but Phillips was attacked and ridiculed, and what was much worse, neglected, even while he was yet alive.

I believe that he will never be entirely forgotten; simply because his poetry is too full of vitality. Although he succeeded in doing what so few have done—getting his poetic dramas on the legitimate stage—"Paolo and Francesca," acted by Sir George Alexander; "Herod," acted by William Faversham, and Beerbohm Tree and "Ulysses"—they will probably seldom, if ever, be revived. But his lyrical and narrative poems, "Marpessa," "Christ in Hades," "The Woman with the Dead Soul," contain some magnificent passages.

Every now and then there are individual passages in Phillips that are impressive, as where he compares the traffic policeman to the conductor of an orchestra:

"The constable with lifted hand
Conducting the orchestral Strand."

And I think the following short poem might have a beneficial effect apart from its literary qualities:

My dear love came to me and said:
"God gives me one hour's rest
To spend with thee on earth again:
How shall we spend it best?"

"Why, as of old," I said; and so
We quarreled, as of old:
But, when I turned to make my peace,
That one short hour was told.

Line-Up On Sanctions

Analysis Of Position Taken By Nations At Geneva Indicates League Is Establishing A United Front Against Violation Of Covenant.

By Bertram Pickard.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Geneva.

THE League Assembly has proved again a remarkable instrument for the mobilization of world opinion. Thanks to the bold lead given by Sir Samuel Hoare (British Minister of Foreign Affairs) opinion in favor of vindicating the Covenant by operating the so-called "collective system" has developed apace.

At the time of the Sino-Japanese conflict, few people expected that the League would go beyond an implicit condemnation of Japanese policy. Explicit condemnation of Japan as a Covenant-breaker was avoided—one might almost say evaded—since such condemnation would have carried with it the obligation to take positive action on behalf of China and League principles. In sharp contrast with the Extraordinary Assembly of 1932, the present Assembly has had constantly in mind from the first moment the possibility of collective action against aggression.

For the first time in League history, collective "sanctions" (in the event of a violation of the Covenant) are now openly envisaged. An examination of characteristic policies, as well as statements made in the Assembly, will indicate the probable measure of support in the League for such joint action.

• • • •

IT may be assumed that the British government, before making so momentous a declaration of policy, was assured of the general support of the British dominions as well as of British public opinion. Doubtless the proximity of the British Isles to the continent of Europe has had much to do with the amazingly rapid growth in England of opinion in favor of "collective security," revealed by the recent peace ballot with its 7,000,000 adherents to the policy of "sanctions." But at the same time the contemporary defensive needs of a far-flung empire have also been making converts to the conception of common defense as the only practical defense.

Thus while the speeches in the Assembly by dominion delegates have not by any means been a mere reiteration of British policy, there has been no hint of dissension.

As might be expected on general grounds, the small powers—which stand most to gain by collective defense and most to lose through failure of the League to prevent aggression—have supported joint action with no uncertain voice.

Some states are less directly interested than others. For example, the Scandinavian countries are neither directly menaced, nor exposed to danger through eventual cooperation in sanctions. Nevertheless, they have strongly emphasized the fatal danger of inaction in face of aggression. "Should war really break out," declared Halvadan Koht (Foreign Minister of Norway), "it would involve consequences of immense gravity for all of us, owing to the obligations which the Covenant imposes on all its signatories, obligations which were so impressively recalled by the First Delegate of Great Britain." But, Mr. Koht continues, "supposing that the members of the League should fail in their duty of supporting it, the consequences would be of even greater gravity."

Both Dr. Munch (Danish Foreign Minister) and Mr. Sandler (Swedish Foreign Minister) have expressed similar sentiments.

THE group of South American States are also on the periphery of the present conflict, but the Mexican delegate (Mr. Gomez) took an early opportunity in the Council of expressing Mexico's desire—and it was assumed he spoke for his South American colleagues that every resource at the League's disposal should be used to vindicate the principles of the Covenant. Moreover, the sanction of non-cooperation with the aggressor is a feature of the Non-Aggression Treaty initiated by Argentina at Montevideo recently.

The attitude of the Dutch and Belgian Governments is important. Holland, through her Foreign Minister (Mr. Van Graeff), stated that his country when signing the Covenant, which act marked a departure from a century-old policy of neutrality, "was convinced that the new system of collective security would constitute an advantage for the community of states to which the Netherlands also belongs, an advantage so great that abstention on its part would have been a failure in the duty of international cooperation."

The Belgian case was expressed similarly by the young Belgian Prime Minister, Mr. van Zeeland. "Being convinced that the presence and activity of the League of Nations are for us a guarantee and an element of force, we have always regarded as fair the price we are asked to pay in return for these advantages—i. e., a share in any burden which follows from any collective decisions taken." Remember, too, that Belgium, like other states with colonies in Africa, is profoundly disturbed at the possible effects upon native populations in the event of a failure on the part of European powers to come to the aid of Ethiopia.

Spain's position was made clear in the Council where the Spanish delegate gave unqualified support to the British view. Close cooperation both of Spain and Portugal with Great Britain may be expected for obvious strategical reasons.

• • • •

BOTH the Little Entente States (Czechoslovakia, Roumania, and Jugoslavia) and those of the Balkan Entente (Jugoslavia, Roumania, Greece and Turkey) are to some extent forced into the same dilemma as France. That is to say, they do not wish to weaken Italy so that German ambitions in Central and South Eastern Europe would be favored. Again, both groups are not averse to seeing Italian energies in part occupied in Africa. Nevertheless, in the last analysis their policy, as both groups have reaffirmed in the Assembly, is rooted in the League system.

The case of the former German allies (Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria) is ambiguous. The first two have special treaty relations with Italy, and it is significant that in their speeches in the Assembly they carefully avoided all reference to the present dispute. They stressed their own need for equality of rights, however, and without doubt will be loathe to throw away the British offer of support for reasonable changes in the status quo, which is cleverly made dependent upon good behaviour!

Poland, as often, is somewhat of a dark horse. But looking into the future Poland has everything to gain from a strengthening of "collective defense," so that cooperation with France and Great Britain would seem her obvious course.

• • • •

AS for the remaining two great powers, Soviet Russia and France, the former did not hesitate to support the British view strongly both in the Council and Assembly, which is strictly in line with Mr. Litvinoff's policy since coming into the League.

France, placed in a cruel dilemna by Italian intransigence, has been forced by growing pressure of her own and world opinion, to give up the hope of remaining passive in case of Italian aggression and has joined the united League front led by the British and Soviet Governments. The final sentences of M. Laval's speech in the Assembly have only one interpretation: "We are all bound by a solidarity which will determine our duty. Our obligations are written in the Covenant. France will not fail to discharge them."

Germany and Japan? It is too soon to judge. The attempt to coerce Italy might, of course, precipitate a world war. But the signs are that Japan has no reason to help Italy, while, as Hitler's speech to the Reichstag at Nuremberg would seem to indicate, Germany has more to gain through holding aloof from the present conflict.

Secretary Hull's timely reminder to signatories of the Kellogg-Briand pact of their obligations, has also been of considerable help as demonstrating American support for the League in its attempt to uphold the principles of Covenant and pact.

Don't Mention It.

The Right Way

By Sir Norman Angell

The following statement was recently written for the Associated Press by Sir Norman Angell, winner of the Nobel Peace Prize.

THE results of a war between Italy and Ethiopia, in so far as they affect Great Britain and America, can hardly be in doubt.

Italy would, of course, conquer Ethiopia, but not easily, and its subsequent occupation of the country will be extremely exhausting. Germany will in consequence have a free hand in Austria. Weakening Italy will be one step more toward that re-establishment of the military hegemony of Europe through Germany, which both Britain and America fought the great war to frustrate.

The menace to democracy will be infinitely greater than would have been involved in a victory for prewar Germany. Another unchecked successful assertion of Fascist military power, coming after those made first by Japan and Germany—the latter having been able to defy the victors with complete impunity within a few years of their victory—will in fact reduce the remaining great democratic states of Europe, France and Great Britain, to something like impotence.

• • • •

THE position of the British Empire will be weakened in any case by the planting of an "expansionist" and intensely militarist state, possessed of the particular political morality which inspires Italian policy, along a line vital to imperial communication commanding the headwaters of the Blue Nile, and establishing a new frontier marching a hundred miles with the frontiers of British colonies.

A still more important consideration is that Italian aggression upon the only remaining independent African state will add most inflammable fuel to the flames of Asiatic and African nationalism, which must sooner or later place the whole imperial structure in danger. The intensification of race feeling will certainly have American repercussions.

Sooner or later Britain will be compelled to intervene. As guardian and chief shareholder of the Suez Canal, the position of facilitating and making profit out of an act of aggression which defies all international rights and which also undermines Britain's own security will become too absurd for indefinite acceptance by the British people.

"Intervention" must not be read as naval or military operations. It may consist of closing the canal, leaving the next step to Italy. America will not be dragged in in the sense that she was dragged in in 1917. But sooner or later she will be compelled to cooperate with other states in withholding from Italy not merely munitions in the last stage of manufacture but those things indispensable to war.

The United States not only is a signatory but is the actual initiator of the treaty declaring non-defensive war a crime against mankind. To supply a criminal with means for his crime or to refuse to cooperate in checking or making difficult what America herself declared to be a crime will, as the situation is clarified, come as a shock to the American conscience. There will ultimately be cooperation between Great Britain and America to stop the supply of means for carrying on operations which before long may well become little more than senseless murder.

• • • •

BRITAIN could have stopped the whole drift toward war if she had been given a lead modeled on the action of American statesmen something over a century ago: If, in other words, she had declared the principle of the Covenant to be her Monroe Doctrine.

The Covenant declares that a state in the circumstances of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute which goes to war with one member of the League goes to war with all. The general assumption is that a simple, straightforward application of this rule by Great Britain would involve war. That assumption turns obvious facts upside down.

If Britain months ago had declared she would defend the Covenant—that is to say, rule that a state must arbitrate or settle its differences peaceably—just as she would defend Jamaica or Australia, there would be no war crisis.

Italy knows an attempt to seize Malta would be resisted by all the power of the British Empire. Therefore its seizure is not attempted. The British policy of so defending British territory does not involve war, nor would a similar definiteness of intention to defend the Covenant, had that intention been sufficiently plain in time, have involved war. The uncertainty as to what we would do in that event explains the drift toward war.

While Italy knows that there would be no question at all of our defending Australia or New Zealand, or for that matter, St. Kitts, in the West Indies, defending them single-handed without talking of the difficulties into which we might get with the United States on account of a blockade or what not, Italy also knows unhappily we are in two minds in defense of the Covenant. Upon that uncertainty and that division of will, the military dictator is ready to gamble.

Our difficulty therefore is not in the last analysis a material one, or lack of means or power, but the absence of any clear conviction as to how that power may best be used defensively.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

What? No Trivial Items?

I read the news with eyes quite glassy;
It's 60 per cent or more Selassie,
Mussolini, the British fleet,
And whether the Cardinals can repeat.

There must be news about the city,
Or if there isn't, more's the pity!
But I get news of cruisers startin',
Communiques and "Pepper" Martin.

Somewhere there must be people who
Love, marry and have babies, too
But they're eclipsed by a baseball score,
The Malta forts and Sir Samuel Hoare.

Somewhere a gangster still must fight,
And students wed when they are tight—
But I hear only of Dizzy's motion,
And goings on in the Indian Ocean.

There must be folks who get divorces,
There must be raids by Federal forces—
But all I get is British subs,
Ethiopian lions and Chicago Cubs.

There must be little side-street scraps,
There must be G-men and their traps—
But all the talk's of negotiations,
Sanctions, Frisch and the League of Nations!

There must be news of girls' eloping,
But all the sheets are busy doping
The state of things along the Nile,
Benito's alms and Van Atta's style.

L'Envoi.

It's left me sad and it's left me blue—
I'm quite perplexed and I'm groggy, too;
Are Detroit and Aden now at war? . . .
And what's the Detroit-Gibralter score?

Add similes: As ignorant of what happened at a million-dollar prizefight as a man who had a ringside seat.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Standard Gas and Electric Co. today announced the sale of operating companies in its widespread system of the stock of Byllesby Engineering and Management Corporation.

"Sale of this stock to the operating companies in the system," the company's statement said, "has been made to carry out the spirit of the recently enacted Federal public utility act of 1935, various State legislation, and the decisions of certain State regulatory commissions."

All of the stock in the management concern previously was owned by the parent concern. The latter realized no profit from the sale, said John J. O'Brien, president of Standard Gas.

Paris Bourse Up On Hopes for Peace

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Sept. 25.—A lull in the Italo-Ethiopian crisis today enabled the Paris bourse to continue its upward climb under the stimulus of domestic influences.

Premier Pierre Laval, by reinforcing the efforts of Georges Bonnet, minister of commerce, toward monetary stabilization by his promise to continue fighting the depression, encouraged buyers.

SEE what you've never seen before—the surprising "DIFFERENCES INSIDE"
THE LOWEST-PRICED CARS!

The X-Ray System shows you the astonishing differences INSIDE cars of the same price. For example, WOOD pillars in bodies usually referred to as ALL steel.

This steel body gives you only wire mesh and fabric over your head. LaFayette alone has a complete, seamless ALL-STEEL body, top, sides and floor!

Amazing new X-RAY System reveals the whole truth about low-priced cars! Proves that LaFayette alone—in the lowest-price field—gives you ALL of the vital features

IN FASCINATING, new pictures, the X-Ray System reveals the whole truth about all leading cars—high-priced and low-priced. You get just plain facts . . . facts that you as a car buyer are entitled to know. It's fun . . . and it's a lot safer than buying a car blindly.

If the X-Ray System can show you, for example, that certain vital features of engineering which are always included in high-priced cars are NOT included in your present car . . . but ARE included in the new 1936 LaFayette—won't that be valuable information to have before buying the same make of car again?

If the X-Ray System can show you that LaFayette alone in the lowest-price field gives you 6 or 8 vital features that expensive cars never omit . . . features that make a car run "sweeter" and keep that new-car "feel" for 40,000 additional miles or more—won't you at least want to consider it before putting the same amount of money into another car?

The X-Ray System CAN show you all of these things—and more! And if you have an open mind about low-priced cars, it will convince you, as it has hundreds of others, that the 1936 LaFayette is the roomiest, safest car . . . the best-engineered car ever offered at anywhere near the price. Beauty Expert Gives Method To Bleach Tan

Treatment Also Imparts More Youthful Appearance to the Skin.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

LAST SUMMER'S tan simply doesn't look right with the vibrant, glowing Italian colors everyone is wearing this fall. But what can we do about it? Tan is tedious to acquire, and equally as tedious to lose. Just when we want a lily fair skin tan has a way of outstaying its welcome by many months.

Unless we have the patience to wait and watch it fade slowly of its own accord we'll have to do some bleaching on our own. One beauty expert, whose methods we know are good, suggests the following procedure:

First cleanse the skin thoroughly. Then apply a light, protective coating of a certain luscious textured skin cream and over this spread an antibrown spot ointment carefully keeping this away from the eyes and mouth. Almost at once you'll notice a tingling and burning—but don't be alarmed! It's just the effect of the potent brown ointment stirring up circulation.

You musn't mind for this is a product which is marvelous for lightening the skin, removing tan, sallowness and other discoloratfons. It stimulates the circulation so effectively you need to leave it on for only about three minutes. You then wipe off with soft cleansing tissues and finishing with a refreshing astringent oil to remove every trace of the ointment. Now to complete the treatment you put on a generous application of rich cream and pat away any flushed appearence with a delightfully cooling and refereshing skin tonic.

A few of these treatments not only will banish your tan but will make your skin look more youthful than ever.

Smart Manicure Sets.

THERE'S AT LEAST a dozen reasons why anyone would succumb to the lure of the manicure sets in a downtown store. In the first place they're reduced (for the time being) from $2.50 to $1.25. And then, they're smart to look at, hold everything one could ever need for nails, are easy and compact to carry around, and ever so handy to keep on one's dresser and tuck away in the drawer. Last, but far from least, the contents are of exceptionally high quality.

The sets come in an attractive leatherette case. In the larger top portion you'll find nail polish, polish remover, cuticle remover and cuticle oil. In a small space which you are surprised to find when you undo a flap on the side, there's file, emory board, orange stick and cotton.

Make-Up of Four Shades.

IT'S AMAZING, and a little bit sad, to find how many women there are who give scarcely a thought to their make-up. They are as likely as not to use a powder made up for a dark brunette, a rouge for a golden-haired blonde and a lipstick concocted for Miss Redhead.

How wise they'd be if they'd just take advantage of the exceptional offer of a trustworthy beautician who puts out four shades of make-up, each one including rouge, lipstick, powder and powder base. Let the lady who is careless choose any one of these make-up groups and she's off on the right beauty track.

Apt as not she'll find champagne one of these lovely blended make-up shades much to her liking. It's adaptable to daytime and evening and to medium blondes and redheads and brunettes with skin of light or medium coloring.

The champagne rouge and lipstick both shade slightly into a yellow tone and have a sparkle that seems to brighten up one's whole expression. They're brilliant without being harsh, and lovely beyond words under artificial lights.

The powder and foundation preparations are in a creamy tint with a lovely glow that every woman recognizes at a glance as flattering.

Try this cosmetic champagne and you'll be raving, too.

Victim of Extreme Inferiority Complex, Given to Envy and Despair at Sight of Others' Happiness, Business Woman Asks Advice.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I am to an extreme degree the victim of self consciousness, complicated by just as extreme an inferiority complex. At times I feel like fleeing if persons give me more than a passing glance. And I am so self conscious that even my conversational ability is greatly impaired. I'm always so afraid of saying the wrong thing that I am usually silent to an embarrassing degree. And very often I can find nothing to talk about.

It seems that people delight so in making small talk that they never have time to listen to things worth while. I do admire the person who can converse freely without thinking of himself. If you can help me to forget myself I'm sure I would be more of a social asset than I now am.

* * * *

I dress and dance well, speak correctly and am fairly well read. I am considered pretty (which I realize means nothing) and hold a fairly authoritative position. I am sure I have the greatest respect of all my associates, but respect is as far as it goes. I deal with members of the opposite sex as well as with members of my own. The part that hurts is that those who obviously are less fortunate than I, in manner of speech, dress and education, are very much more popular.

* * * *

I have been accused of being an introvert and a person who thinks only of self. I have been accused of being dirtant and haughty to my friends when I entertain. The thing which I wish to impress upon you is the fact that I strive to be just the opposite. I should like to create and leave a pleasing impression, but so far I've never succeeded. I'm sure the self-consciousness has a great deal to do with this, but try as I will, I cannot overcome it. I should like very much to meet new people and try again, but meeting new people seems almost impossible.

* * * *

I am very ambitious but if plans do not turn out as I wish I am subject to the blackest depths of despair. If I see someone happy, doing the things I should like to be doing, it hurts terribly and makes me feel utterly hopeless. I should like to mingle with people and be a part of activities. I am not content to be an onlooker.

* * * *

I have bared myself completely, admitting my faults as I find them. Please prescribe for me a mental remedy if nothing else. It has almost become a morbid obsession. Thank you very much. M'KATO.

On Achieving Happiness.

DEAR M'KATO: As the first exercise in the mental remedy you ask for, I suggest you count the "I's", "me's" and "myself's" in your foregoing letter. Count them; six in the first paragraph, six in the second paragraph, eight in the third, twelve in the fourth, seven in the fifth and four in the sixth—forty-three references to self, all told, in the space of one short letter.

One wonders if your attempts at social conservation correspondingly bristle with the personal pronoun. If so, you are a long way off from emulating that person you so much admire; namely, he who can as you say, "converse freely without thinking of himself." Rather, you have your back squarely turned to the road which leads to personal popularity.

* * * *

You are indeed suffering from an inferiority complex, but as Dr. W. Beran Wolfe has written, "If you have an inferiority complex you are in good company. The sense of inadequacy is not your unique property. It is universal.' And because this disturbing sense of personal inadequacy lurks within every breast, the right road to popularity lies in suggesting to the other fellow a conviction of his charm, significance and power to accomplish. I carry over in memory a quotation somewhere read in childhood: "If you bring a smiling visage to the glass, you meet a smile." Figuratively as well as literally speaking, this is a true saying. If we look for, and find (and it is simply a matter of practice to do so) things to admire and to approve in others, they reciprocate in kind by seeing similar qualities in us.

* * * *

In order to pass as a good conversationalist it is not essential that one always talk about "things worth while." The deadliest bore, as a rule, is he who expects others to listen to his diatribes on subjects he deems "worth while," and who sulks in injured silence when those others retreat in self-defense, as they invariably do in such instances, behind a screen of small talk. As a matter of fact, one cannot be a really good conversationalist unless one learns to excel in the art of making small talk. Good conversation never permits of worrying a meaty subject to the bone. Good conversation is best supplied by persons with well-informed minds who submit their contributions lightly, wittily, with minimum reference to me and mine, and with the suggestion of a question mark, rather than a period, at the end of each sentence; and who are instantly ready to abandon any one topic in favor of any other.

* * * *

To be a good conversationalist, one must realize the importance of being an intent, affirmative listener. One must study intelligently all persons with whom one comes in contact, in order to know what their interests, their ambitions and their achievements are. One must learn how, subtly and in good taste, to make one's vis-a-vis the leading man or the leading woman, as the case may be, in the little drama of any conversational encounter. It is all-important to leave with the other fellow the conviction that he has acquitted himself admirably in the situation.

* * * *

Therefore, as the second exercise in the mental remedy you ask for, I suggest you concentrate hereafter not on the idea of making a good impression on others, but on the idea of making others happier through contributing tactfully and sincerely to their sense of self-esteem. This will help you (a) to forget yourself and (b) to make the good impression.

* * * *

Stop striving after perfectionism and worse yet, the appearance of perfectionism, if you wish to be lovable and loved. Be content to be human, faulty and frail in the little things. And remember this: once you have placed yourself on better terms with your fellowmen by conducting yourself as one of them, dependent upon them and approving of them, and have won their dependence and approval in return, you will lose that oppressive sense of despair and heartbreak over failure to achieve ambitions to the fullest. You will be free of that nightmare envy which gnaws your bosom at sight of others happy or successful.

* * * *

What you crave is the comforting assurance of social acceptance. For as Dr. Wolfe has said: "The inferiority complex as it exists today in the individual is an expression of his isolation from the body of mankind, either physical, mental or emotional." It might do you a world of good to read Dr. Wolfe's book, "How to Be Happy Though Human," from which I have quoted above. M. H.

Formal Bags of Antelope Are Favored for Afternoon

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—There's lots of variety to the afternoon bags women will carry this fall. Variety of shape and size, though not of material. Antelope—plain, shirred, blistered or quilted—is definitely the favorite.

Fashion likes large miser bags, top handle bags, fat little pouch bags, tiny variety bags, deep "feed" bags . . . these all swing along in tune with the going-places tempo of fall 1935!

Granting antelope's fashion leadership, many women will carry small velvet bags, as well, for late afternoon and cocktail time. Adorned with elegant metal or jeweled tops—the latter glittering away quite in the Renaissance manner.

Glance at the good sized miser bag sketched (top left), with its wide bracelet of dull gold. Oriental in inspiration . . . certainly fall 1935 in sophistication! Quite large enough to harbor billfold, key ring, checkbook, as well as the needful powder and lipstick.

Sketched beside the miser bag is that perennial favorite, the top handle bag—so handy to tote around. Here is a smart alliance of suede front and matching calf back. A practical idea, as the back gets by far the most wear and tear.

Sketched just below the top handle bag is a Renaissance-inspired pouch bag. Small and neat, yet a pouch bag can stretch conveniently, if necessary, to accommodate that extra gadget. The bag in the sketch has a dull gold frame—though metal with a shiny finish is just as popular. Some metal frames are set with bright colored simulated jewels . . . or with rhinestones . . . or have rhinestone-combined-with-jewel clasps. Which can tie up with jeweled costume clips.

The elongated "feed" bag wins fashion plaudits for formal afternoon wear as well as informal daytime wear!

Mrs. Ashurst's Recipe for Beef Stew Provides Delectable Dish.

By Pattie Ellicott.

AT THOSE delightful Tuesday luncheons of the Ladies of the Senate, which date back to sewing for the Red Cross in World War days, there is always a sigh of pleasure when Mrs. Henry S. Ashurst, wife of the Senator from Arizona, is designated to plan the menu.

Often her contribution is in the form of beef stew of a glorified nature, seasoned according to the queen's taste not only with the proper condiments and herbs but with her own sparkling Irish wit as well.

When her romance with Senator Ashurst began in Arizona, where she kept watch and ward for Uncle Sam in Flagstaff as its energetic postmistress, no doubt it was that "Irish beef stew" served by the Renoe family as well as the attractions of Miss Elizabeth McEvoy Renoe, that made his visits memorable.

The recipe frequently used by the Ashurst cook under her mistress' direction is as follows: First of all, the tasty ingredients. Cut 2 pounds of rump or thick round steak into 2-inch cubes and season highly. Then heat the fat in a skillet, add the meat, stir while the outside is browning quickly, add three cups of water, one tablespoonful chopped parsley, one tablespoon chopped celery and two tablespoonfuls of canned tomatoes. Cook slowly for about 3 hours. Then to it should be added one cup scooped carrot balls, one and one-half cup scooped onion balls and one-half cup peas. Cook this for three-quarters of an hour longer then add one and one-half cup potato balls.

It will take about one-half hour longer cooking until the potatoes are done. It should be served on a flat platter with vegetables around the meat.

Donkeys Will Aid Democratic Drive

The old gray mare may not be what she used to be, but the donkey is coming into his own at last. That is, if he happens to be one of those sturdy, small donkeys made out of metal and designed to carry the pennies and nickels and dimes of the Democratic women to county and State headquarters as their contribution to back the President's program.

Starting out this week from the office of Mrs. James H. Wolfe, chairman of the women's division of the national Democratic committee, these donkey banks will go into every State of the Union. Designed to help the drive to collect money for campaign purposes, the banks will stand on dressers, sideboards and tables to remind women of their pledge to help defray campaign expenses. One slogan of the drive is, "A penny a day keeps deficit away."

Strictly Speaking

Find the Errors in These.

1. "Helen was the more aggressive of the five sisters."
2. "He wasn't there but a year."
3. "The robbery was perpetuated in broad daylight."
4. "I'm going to introduce a singer who I know you will enjoy."

Check Here.

1. The superlative most aggressive should be used. More refers to two; most to more than two.
2. "He was there but a year" is correct. "But" has the force of a negative, thus making two negatives.
3. Perpetuated is used incorrectly. The word should be perpetrated.
4. The sentence should read, "I'm going to introduce a singer whom I know you will enjoy."

Hair Removal By Electricity Is Held Safest

Only Experienced Operator Is Competent to Manage Needle.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

SEVERAL weeks ago we discussed the danger of using hair removers containing thallium. From the numerous letters received it is evident that superfluous hair as a mar to feminine beauty is of common occurrence and thousands desire to be rid of it once and for all.

When carefully used, pastes containing barium or calcium sulphide are nonpoisonous and they can be employed by certain persons without damage to the skin. The disadvantage, however, is that they may prove irritating to sensitive skins, and hence give rise to inflammation. If pastes are selected applications must be made repeatedly as the chemicals do not destroy the roots of the hair and a new growth appears promptly. After all, chemicals produce much the same effects as does shaving.

There is but one permanent way to remove superfluous hair and that is by destroying the hair follicle or root. Several years ago the X-ray was quite generally utilized for this purpose, but in order to destroy the hair, the dosage had to be fairly heavy and not infrequently serious injuries to the skin resulted. No plan equals in permanence and safety the use of the electric needle. The negative electrode is attached to the needle, the positive electrode to the patient's hand or arm, and an exceedingly fine platinum needle is generally employed.

Most follicles lie obliquely to the skin, that is, they do not occur at right angles to the surface and in order to effectively destroy the hair root the needle must enter the follicle along the side of the hair and in the direction in which it grows. Current applied from 10 to 20 seconds is usually sufficient to destroy the follicle. If tiny bubbles of hydrogen appear at its mouth, one may know that the current is flowing and that the hair bulb is being cauterized. After the destruction of the bulb the hair is removed

Move to Save Feminism From Dictatorships Pushed

Equal Nationality and Rights Treaties Before League Assembly.

WOMEN THROUGHOUT the world are looking eagerly to Geneva this week not alone in the hope that war may be stayed but that the feminine line may be held steady against the advance of dictators.

Before the League of Nations Assembly are the equal nationality and equal rights treaties. The first has just been acted upon encouragingly by a League committee. Debate on the question of the whole status of women and the equality treaties is scheduled to continue through the week. Then a final vote will be taken.

Raises Hopes of European Women.

Miss Alice Paul, representative of the international committee of the National Woman's Party, expects favorable action soon by the League on the equal nationality treaty, which was signed at Montevideo in 1933 by the representatives of 19 governments. In Geneva working in support of both equality treaties are women leaders of the United States, Europe, Asia, Africa and South America. Representing the United States are Mrs. Abby Scott Baker, of Washington; Miss Mabel Vernon, of Wilmington, Del.; Mrs. Lola Maverick Lloyd, of Chicago, and Miss Madeleine Z. Doty, representative at Geneva of the Women's Consultative Committee on Nationality.

Regardless of what immediate action is taken by the League, the mere fact that women are in a world-wide union at Geneva in behalf of their rights is highly significant, Miss Paul pointed out.

German Women's Plight.

"This is the first time," she said, "that women of all countries have combined on a common object relating to the status of women. The campaign at Geneva is also a symbol of hope to the women of Europe who are being pressed back by dictators. We are saying to them that we are saving the woman's rights movement for the world.

"We are going before the League as positively as is Ethiopia, demanding our rights. The women of dictator-ridden countries will know that we will be at Geneva perpetually asking for equality."

Miss Paul, who recently returned from Geneva where she attended the summer meetings of the women's consultative committee, of which she is a member, told of messages received from women in dictator-controlled countries.

"Of course all women's rights activities in such countries are in a state of suspension," she said. "But while I was at Geneva a group of the old suffragists in Germany sent to the Women's Consultative Committee an unsigned message in which they said, 'We want to tell you that this movement in Geneva is the one thing going on in the world that offers us any hope.'

"These women went on to say that their professions had been closed to them, their incomes and their means of livelihood taken away from them and that they did not even have tram fare to go anywhere or do anything. 'We must keep silent,' they said, 'but we take hope in the fact that you are keeping the flag flying at Geneva.' "

With the situation in Europe becoming more serious for women, Miss Paul believes that women in countries now free from dictators should rally their forces in behalf of the feminist fight at Geneva.

"Wherever dictators have been set up," she said, "feminine progress and development have been curtailed. Even as in Turkey, where women were at first given some recognition, the tide later has set in against them. Women of the free countries must be articulate at Geneva for those who cannot speak for themselves."

Women Leaders of World Work in Support of Both Proposals.

Committee Studies Treaty.

The League committee in its resolution on the Equal Nationality Treaty draws the attention of members of the League to the fact that the Equal Nationality Convention's principle of equal nationality rights for women "is open to adherence by all states." Thsi action is considered to assure adoption of the resolution by the plenary Assembly.

The equal rights treaty, which would obligate each government accepting it to establish and maintain complete equality of rights between men and women—economic, political, social, educational—is now under discussion by a League committee. It was brought before the League a year ago in a letter signed by the representatives of ten South American countries.

The equal nationality treaty was brought before the last session of the League in a letter signed by representatives of 15 governments. Both treaties are under consideration in the light of a report prepared by the Women's Consultative Committee, representing five international organizations having a membership of 45,000,000 women. This committee was created by the Council of the League in 1931 and has been functioning since as an advisory body. This report was signed by Miss L. C. A. Van Eoghen, of Holland; Dr. Renee Girod, of Switzerland, for the International Council of Women; Doris Stevens and Alice Paul, of the United States, for the Inter-American Commission of Women; Madeleine Doty, United States, and Mme. Eugenie Meller, Hungary, for the Women's International League of Peace and Freedom, and Mme. Lillian von Matsch, Austria, for the Equal Rights International, and Dr. Rosa Wolt Straus, of Palestine, for the All-Asian Congress of Women.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

Plenty of ladies have their cake and eat it, too, these days. But managing a career and a home is a double duty task any way you look at it and takes a lot of careful organizing. A young business couple are grand companions when they work out their pattern of life on a harmonious motif as this pretty secretary and her young man have done.

J. W. E. WRITES: I have a job and a husband both, and that means that my entertaining has to be very informal. But we do enjoy having our friends in for casual gatherings. We're furnishing a small dining room or rather dinette where we'll probably have welch rarebit suppers and chili parties and now and then a Sunday breakfast. What would you suggest for furniture and colors? Of course it has to be fairly simple and not too expensive.

* * * *

ANSWER: My choice would be maple furniture—a trestle table with benches or gateleg table with Windsor chairs. Then an open-face cupboard for the dishes. About colors—white walls with green and white checked or plaid gingham curtains and a fringed table cloth of the same material would be pretty. For the floor have a solid red linoleum kept waxed and polished. The dishes would be pretty in a scenic pattern of white and red. Arrange them on the shelves with bubnail glass and occasional pieces of pewter. Several botany print pictures with reds in them would be good for the walls—or you might have bird prints with narrow red painted frames.

They just cannot help from being keener and smarter when working only five days, at salaries generally higher than old code requirements. On The Air Today

Add to the roster of stars who make their seasonal bows this coming month, a calendar already bursting with premieres, the names of Leslie Howard, Jack and Loretta Clemens, "Red Horse Tavern" and the General Motors Symphony.

The celebrated Leslie Howard has been signed to do a half-hour drama each Sunday night (WJSV), probably featuring him in the romantic and adventuresome roles for which he is distinguished on the stage and screen.

His most recent motion picture was "The Scarlet Pimpernel"—stage, "The Animal Kingdom" and "Berkeley Square." The signing of Howard rounds out a full hour Sunday nights for the sponsors of Eddie Cantor's new show.

• • • •

Jack and Loretta Clemens, youthful stage and radio stars, will be spotlighted in an aair serial to be known as "Studio 7"—a morning program starting October 1. They'll play the roles of two youngsters who inherit radio station KNEW from an uncle who first had received their pledge to encourage amateur talent on the air. You've heard the Clemenses in some of last season's top-notch shows. Remember Loretta's bright little song, "How High Can the Little Birds Fly?"

• • • •

"Red Horse Tavern" brings Jim Harkins back to the air. Harkins pinchhit for Fred Allen before Frank Crumit took over the Allen substitution in "Town Hall Tonight." Harkins will portray the genial proprietor of the Tavern which will entertain a distinguished guest each week. Freddy Rich's orchestra, Willie Morris, soprano, and a male chorus of 16 voices will make of "Red Horse Tavern" a musical revue.

• • • •

Last year the General Motors Concerts were tagged by the Women's National Radio Committee as "the best sponsored music program." The concerts come back to the air October 6 with last year's policy of presenting distinguished soloists. Artists for the first few broadcasts will be selected from Kirsten Flagsted, soprano; Mischa Elman, violinist; Richard Crooks, tenor; Rosa Ponselle, soprano, and Jose Iturbi, pianist-conductor. Leading conductors also will appear as last year with Erno Rapee conducting the first part of each hour.

• • • •

The voice of Pope Pius XI will be heard today if atmospheric conditions are right. The message and benediction, addressed to the Eucharistic Congress, will be heard at 4:30, WRC . . . Arch McDonald goes to Frederick this afternoon to broadcast his baseball game for the benefit of a Kiwanis Charity Carnival from the stage of the Armory. For this reason WJSV will not broadcast the message from the Pope.

• • • •

Today's feature broadcast originates in the New York Stock Exchange, an informal half hour to show how the exchange wheels go round, WRC, 1:30 . . . 'Stars and Stripes' Will Tour World

Byrd Plane Being Reconditioned in Hagerstown.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 25.—The Stars and Stripes, one of the planes used by Admiral Richard Byrd in the Antarctic, which is being reconditioned at the local plant of the Fairchild Aircraft Corporation, which originally built the plane, will be taken on a two-year exhibition tour of the world.

The tour is being sponsored by the Western Airplane Distributors, Kansas City, Mo., and the plane will be in charge of Alton H. Walker, president of that company.

The plane was buried under snow and ice near the South Pole for five years. After minor repairs, the plane was again put into service by the second Byrd expedition and used in exploring more than a half million square miles of territory.

The plane will be exhibited at the Hagerstown airport beginning next week, and will leave here for the world tour early next month.

Hollywood

By Sidney Skolsky

Hollywood, Sept. 25.

ELEANOR POWELL is a great example of what can happen to a performer entering pictures.

She walked about the Fox studio for months waiting to play her role in George White's "Scandals." She did. The flicker was released and she was released. She created no excitement.

She was as fine a dancer then as she is now. It proves that it all depends on how a performer is handled and presented in a flicker. Fred Astaire was as good a dancer in "Dancing Lady" as he is in "Top Hat."

Miss Powell was fortunate enough to be presented properly in "The Broadway Melody." Situations in the scenario were built especially for her. She was photographed with great care. Scenes were played again and again until she played them with rare skill.

• • • •

When a director's picture depends mainly on one performer, he will concentrate on that performer. Director Roy Del Ruth made the screen test of Eleanor Powell and decided to use her in a million-dollar picture. He had to make her good.

Here is an example of the time and care given: Miss Powell's opening scene, in which she talks to Una Merkle at the switchboard, took three days to film.

Her appearance was changed. She wore her hair in a different style. And it was tinted a reddish brown so it could be high lighted better.

She shaved off the ends of her eyebrows. She put gold make-up on her cheeks, a la Merle Oberon, to high light them and appear glamorous. She had two little veneers placed over her teeth—which allowed her a pleasing smile.

Given this chance, she used her talent and went to town.

HER full name is Eleanor Torrey Powell. She was born on November 21, 1913, in Springfield, Mass. Her nickname is Ding.

She is 5 feet 6½ inches tall and weighs 120 pounds. Her eyes are blue. She has a brown birthmark on her right forearm. It gets darker in the summer and lighter in the winter. When she gets angry she begins to cry.

She was sent to dancing school, when a kid, not to become a dancer, but to lose her extreme bashfulness. Her first professional appearance was made at Atlantic City when she was 13. Gus Edwards saw her doing some acrobatic dances on the beach and put her to work. She got $7 a night, three nights a week.

• • • •

She is fond of dancing, and works hard at it. After dancing all day for the big number in "The Broadway Melody," she would go to her room at the Beverly-Wilshire Hotel and put her feet in a basin of hot water while eating dinner.

She goes to a chiropodist every two weeks to have her feet massaged. She doesn't use any polish on her toe or fingernails.

She invents her dance steps in a peculiar manner. She likes Fats Waller's records, and he's her inspiration for new steps. She plays nine different records and picks up one step from each. She has a funny way of remembering the steps. She calls them by something she happens to be doing at the time. She has a step called the "Coffee Pot Strut"—because she was going for the coffee then.

She's a hugger and a holder. She just can't say "Hello." She must shake hands or hug. She calls everyone "Dear" and "Darling"—but if she really likes you she calls you "Stinker."

• • • •

SHE is fond of perfume. The color she prefers most is blue. She spends hours taking off her make-up and uses ice cubes to stimulate her skin.

When she was playing in "Follow Thru," she got a letter from a boy in London, who had seen the show while visiting this country. It was a fan letter. She sent him her picture and he sent her his picture. They have been corresponding ever since. He is a tea taster.

As for boy friends, she says she doesn't like youths unless they have ambition—and she doesn't mean the wrong ambition.

• • • •

When it comes to eating, she generally orders roast beef and ice cream. No matter how much she likes a dish, she always leaves a little on the plate.

She sleeps in pajamas and wears a bed jacket because her arms get cold. She pushes the covers off. She likes to get nine hours' sleep a night. She is a restless sleeper.

They were rehearsing a dance number for "The Broadway Melody"—Eleanor Powell and the chorus girls. Miss Powell danced and the chorines watched. When Miss Powell finished, the chorines didn't break into applause. But every chorine took off her dancing shoes and threw them toward the center of the rehearsal hall.

Levy Limits Held Threat To City Rule

Special Interests Foster Constitutional Curb, League Is Told.

Virginia C. of C. Head Sees Fine Chance to Lure Industry.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 25.—Clifford Ham, field consultant of the American Municipal Association, Chicago, speaking on "the Fallacy of Tax Limitation Laws" at the thirtieth annual convention of the League of Virginia Municipalities here this afternoon, said that "constitutional tax limitations are the most serious threat to continuation of local government." Tax limitations, he said, are the "brain child and brainstorm" of special interests.

The answer to local financial and tax problems, he continued, will be found through restudy of public structure, relation of local and State functions to determine which functions are best administered by State and by local governments.

C. H. Morrissett, State tax commissioner, said there was no movement in Virginia to get constitutional amendment to limit taxes and no exemptions of consequence in Virginia, the general convention of 1902 seeing to it that legislative power was restricted in that matter. The movement, he said, may come to life, but can only lead to grief. Some towns and cities have limitations, Morrisett continued, but only in charters and no trouble has been experienced in eliminating them when found unsatisfactory.

Johns Lauds State Scenery.

Jay Johns, president of State Chamber of Commerce, told the more than 300 officials that the State has a "grand opportunity" to get factories and industries. Tourist trade he said does not mean solely bringing sightseers for historic points but opens their ears to other opportunities. The State chamber he said was operating on a budget of less than $50,000 while other States were spending hundreds of thousands without "our attractions."

Speaking on pollution in Virginia, Richard Messer, director of the bureau of sanitary engineering, Richmond, said pollution in Virginia was not serious compared with other States and the faults can be corrected if attacked now and not allowed to get beyond control. Pollution, Morrisett said, was mostly a local problem.

Other speakers this afternoon included R. W. Catlin, town manager, Farmville, who told of a new tax map made in Farmville which described and located properties, thus aiding the checking of tax and rolls and simplifying work of assessors and equalization boards. Edward H. Ruehl, field consultant of the municipalities on such question as taxes and legislation.

White Addresses Banquet.

Tonight, at a banquet in Stratford Hotel, Dr. Leonard D. White, of the United State Civil Service Commission, Washington, spoke on "The New Aspect of Public Service." Other speakers included B. Stuart Royer, former Mayor of Fredericksburg, and Dr. J. Fulmer Bright, Mayor of Richmond.

Satisfaction with the operation of Government relief agencies in Virginia and pride in their accomplishments were expressed this morning before the league by James A. Anderson, PWA administrtor; John H. Galleher, NEC, director, and William A. Smith, WPA director. Each offered the services of their departments in helping localities meet their relief needs.

A recommendation that Virginia cities and towns present a "united front" against any State or Federal effort to have them assume a share of social security costs was voiced by E. M. Stull, president of the league, in his opening address.

Shands to Discuss Pensions.

Tomorrow's session will open with a meeting of the mayors, councilmen and city managers, with Mayor W. R. L. Taylor, Norfolk, presiding. Among the addresses will be one on "Old-Age Pensions," by William R. Shands, director legislative reference bureau and secretary of the Governor's advisory legislative council. B. Morgan Shepher, Mayor of Ashland, will preside when T. Coleman Andrews, former auditor of public accounts, Richmond, talks on "Plans for Auditing the Financial Affairs of a Town."

"Correlating State and Local Plans for Public Works" will be the subject of Russell V. Black, consultant for State planning boards of New Jersey and Virginia, and C. P. Craig, auditor and clerk of the Martinsville Council, will discuss "Auditors and City and Town Clerks." Dr. Clarence E. Ridley, executive director International City Managers Association, Chicago, will speak on "Making the Most of Budgets and Reports."

At 10:30 a. m., with E. M. Stull, president of the league, presiding, a business session will be held at which resolutions will be adopted, legislation discussed, time and place of next meeting set and officers nominated and elected. Adjournment will be at noon.

Third of Gang Who Slew Trooper Is Sought in Louisa County.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 25.—Capt. H. H. Nicholas, directing the hunt for the third member of the trio of bandits who participated in an attempted robbery of the Fluvanna County Bank at Fork Union, late today dispatched a squad of State troopers to Louisa County, where a man answering the bandit's description was seen in the woods.

State police were informed by a mail carrier covering his route between the town of Louisa and Trevilians, that he saw a man, believed to be the fugitive bandit, slip into the woods a few miles from Louisa.

The missing man, known to police as Milton, was believed wounded in the gun battle, in which State Trooper W. R. Thompson was killed. The mail carrier said the man he saw in the woods walked with a limp.

Meanwhile, copies of the fingerprints of the two men held at Henrico Jail as suspects in the attempted robbery were sent to Washington for identification, together with photographs of prints found on a pistol dropped at the bank by one of the fleeing gunmen.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Blanche Murchison Ward, a son, A. Norman Ward, jr., three sisters and a brother.

Bishop McDowell, also a member of the committee on union, recalled Dr. Ward's devotion to this work and asserted "A miracle has taken place before your eyes on College Hill, showing that Jesus still renews himself in the lives of men."

Describing Dr. Ward as a "great dreamer who made his dreams come true," Dr. Broomfield praised his optimism and his devotion to the liberal movement. Dr. Straughn eulogized the late president as one true to vital issues.

Dr. E. A. Sexsmith, of Baltimore, president of the Maryland Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, presided both at the chapel and the committal services.

Gov. and Mrs. Nice Attend.

The Rev. J. Earl Cummings, pastor of Dr. Ward's church, gave the invocation. The Scriptures were read by Dr. R. L. Shipley, editor of the Methodist Protestant Recorder, and Dr. H. L. Elderdice, president emeritus of Westminster Theological Seminary.

Gov. and Mrs. Harry W. Nice attended the services. Among other dignitaries present were Representative William P. Cole, jr., Dr. Joseph H. Apple, president emeritus of Hood College; Dr. G. I. Humphries, president of High Point (N. C.) College, and Chief Judge Francis Neale Parke, of Carroll County Circuit Court.

Attending the services in a body were the ministers of the Maryland annual conference of the Methodist Protestant Church and the ministers of Carroll County.

A floral pall was banked deep around the grave. Among the tributes were offerings from the board of trustees, the chamber of commerce, the Rotary Club, the Faculty Club, the alumni, the various fraternities, the classes, the Sunday schools, the football team, the mayor and city council and the coaches of Harvard University.

The board of trustees will meet October 3. Dr. William R. McDaniel is vice president of the college.

Shore Train Curtailment Is Protested

Residents Fight Move as Pennsy Plea Is Heard by Commission.

Goldsborough Also Hits Plan as Oxford Line Loses Two Trains.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Sept. 25.—Reinforced by Representative T. Alan Goldsborough, Eastern Shore residents today registered strong protests against the curtailment of service on the Delaware, Maryland & Virginia branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The protests were made as the public service commission held a hearing on the railroad's request for permission to discontinue two of the four daily trains.

While the hearing was in progress, members of the commission signed an order permitting withdrawal of two trains on the Oxford branch of the Pennsylvania. A hearing on this request was held yesterday.

Railroad representatives asserted one of the trains on the D., M. & V. loses about $400, and the other $450 a month. Since 1931, they said, average passengers a day on one train have decreased from 23 to 4.4, and on the other from 20 to 9.8.

Among those who appeared to object to the change were J. O. Byrd, mayor of Snow Hill; G. Hale Harrison and Raymond McGee, of Berlin. All declared the change would interfere with the mail service.

The railroad said the Government would establish truck routes to carry the mail on aprpoximately the same schedules as the train service. Railroad representatives also promised that the service would not end until these routes were established.

The Oxford order stipulated that train service should continue on this branch until the truck routes were in operation.

Hill to Face Jury Today In Cab Death

Harford Panel Called to Special Session in Atwell Slaying.

Soldiers Are Removed as Threats of Mob Disappear.

By the Associated Press.

Bel Air, Md., Sept. 25.—The Harford County grand jury will convene in special session at 10 a. m. tomorrow to consider the murder charge against Kendall Hill in the death of Albert Atwell, Baltimore taxi driver.

Sheriff Granville C. Boyle said today all members of the jury had been summoned. The witnesses will include State police who arrested Hill and the man who found Atwell's body near Havre de Grace last week.

To preclude any possible suicide attempt, guards at the county jail today removed Hill's belt, necktie and shoe strings. The prisoner appeared in good spirits, however.

Nervous at Hearing.

He was nervous and shaken yesterday as he appeared before Magistrate Stanley S. Spencer to waive preliminary hearing. Circuit Court Judge Walter W. Preston had announced earlier he had summoned the grand jury into session.

The State's case against Hill will be presented to the jury by State's Attorney D. Paul McNabb.

Among the witnesses summoned are Sergt. M. D. Brubaker, Corpl. C. E. Minnick and Officer A. F. Anderson, of the State police, who arrested Hill and W. R. Werntz, who found Atwell's body.

Can Appear at Court.

Sheriff Boyle said that while Hill was not well, he could appear in court at any time. An early trial was indicated.

The National Guard company mobilized here after a number of taxi drivers were reported planning a march on the jail was removed yesterday.

Atwell disappeared early last week. His body, strangled, was found late Friday. Lieut. Andrew Conners, of the State police, announced late Saturday, after Hill had undergone intensive grilling, that he had confessed the murder. He exonerated Harry Jones, who was arrested with him late Friday.

Schmeling, Despite Pending Braddock Bout, Looks to Louis

Enough Cash Is All Nazi Requests

Jacobs Also Speaks of Drawing Sharkey From Retirement for Joe.

Couple Adds to Baer's Woe by Suing Him After Seat Collapse.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 25.—The defeat of Max Baer came as no stirring surprise to Max Schmeling, who is looking toward America for new offers, this time to meet Joe Louis.

"If the purse is satisfactory," Schmeling said, "I'm itching to meet Louis to see who is the better man, although I'm promised a bout with Braddock next year."

Schmeling, so far, has received no offers for a Louis match, but hopes reports that Promoter Mike Jacobs will come to Germany to sign him are true.

From his trainer it was learned that Schmeling believes he will have a good chance to halt Louis' triumphant campaign. Schmeling believes if Baer had been in the same condition he was two years ago Louis never would have had a chance.

"But this time the result was just what I expected," the former champion said.

New York, Sept. 25 (AP).—Arthur Donovan, who referred the Louis-Baer fight, said today that the decisive punch was a left hook to the pit of the stomach, delivered by the Negro in the first round.

"That punch landed at a time when Baer was going pretty good," said Donovan. "It was a crusher and, I think, took most of the confidence out of the Californian besides slowing him up abruptly. It was a ristinct turning point and made the rest of the bout easy for Louis."

Amsterdam, N. Y., Sept. 25 (AP). A court action was started today which may take a slice of the cash Max Baer received last night for his fight with Joe Louis.

Willis M. Tollner and his wife, Marion D. Tollner, of Amsterdam, brought suit to recover for injuries allegedly received when bleachers at Baer's Speculator training camp collapsed on September 15.

New York, Sept. 25.—It's just possible that Jack Sharkey, former heavyweight champion from Boston, may come out of retirement to tkae a shot at the new sensation of the ring—Joe Louis.

"I'd like to make that match," said Mike Jacobs, promoter, who has Louis under exclusive contract, today. "Sharkey's manager, Johnny Buckley, was in yesterday, but I was too bus with details of the Louis-Baer fight to talk much to him.

"It would draw a tremendous gate and I'd like to put it on, maybe in the spring, either here or in Boston. I understand Sharkey right now is within a couple of pounds of fighting weight."

Sharkey retired after losing the heavyweight title to Primo Carnera on a knockout and dropping decisions to King Levinsky and Tommy Loughran in 1933. He said at the Baer-Louis fight last night that he'd like a chance at Louis if there was enough money involved.

After the Battle Was Over—Max Baer and Joe Louis Pictured in Family Scenes

Joe Louis shows his new bride, the former Marva Trotter, of Chicago, whom he married 2 hours before the fight, the left fist that battered Max Baer into submission.

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS.

Bowed and bloody, Max Baer, true to his clowning role, smiles in defeat as he rests his battered body in his New York hotel apartment after the fight.

Comforted by his bride. The former Mary Ellen Sullivan and her husband do not appear to be unduly chagrined over Baer's terrific beating by the Negro heavyweight.

'Samson,' Ancestor of Louis, Won $50 by Tossing Baboon

By the Associated Press.

MACON, Ga., Sept. 25.—Joe Louis' ring prowess was foreshadowed generations ago on a Georgia plantation by one of his forebears who threw a baboon for $50.

Just after the Civil War Yankee soldiers were barnstorming the section with a giant baboon. None could collect the $50 offered to anyone who would pin the brute.

They came to the plantation owned by the grandparents of Dr. C. L. Ridley, now superintendent of the Macon Hospital. There was a powerful clan of former slaves named Louis on the farm and one aptly named "Samson" threw the baboon with ease.

Dr. Ridley's great-great-grandmother was Mary Louis, of North Carolina, before she married and came to live on her husband's plantation. It was her maiden name that the slaves took as their own.

The Louis Negroes remained on the farm until the fighter's mother moved to Alabama before Joe Louis Barrow was born.

Fast Line Cheers Gobblers' Mentor

Team Aroused After Slow Saturday Contest.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Blacksburg, Va., Sept. 25.—A rejuvenated Virginia Tech line is stepping fast this week as the Gobblers prepare to open the Southern Conference football campaigning here Saturday against one of the crack teams of the conference—Clemson's snarling Tigers.

A smile flits across the stern faces of the Tech coaches as they watch the linemen pull out and race ahead of a fleet array of ball carriers. The speedsters of the Gobbler backfield — such men-o'-war as Marvin Cregger, Wilburt Kennedy, Mel Henry and Foots Dickerson—are not "running up the backs" of their interferers.

Thoroughly aroused after a somewhat sluggish performance against a strong Roanoke college team in the opening game, the Tech forwards are on the range. They face a fast, quick-charging line from Clemson Saturday and they believe that they can match the rampaging Bengals in speed and drive.

Gallico

Says Baer Quit—Louis Can Take It, Greatest Fighter.

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, Sept. 25.—Little note on why people like Joe Louis and his outfit: There was a colored man in the press row at the big fight. When Louis was hammering Baer into subjection, fired by the scene and the passion of the fight, he jumped to his feet and yelled—"Kill him, Joe . . . Kill him!"

The little party of colored seconds in Louis' corner took their eyes from the fight and from their man. They asked him to stop. They said—"Please don't do that. That isn't nice. We don't want that sort of thing. It will do the boy harm." It was stopped.

Telegram: "Paul Gallico, care Daily News—Who is looney now? If I remember after the famous Baer-Carnera performance you said Baer was the greatest fighter of all times, or did you say bums? Stop. The weather is getting cold, take your fur coat with you on the limb; it appears to me you are going to be there for a long time.

BILL BROWN."

Mr. Brown is on the New York State Athletic Commission.

Did he or didn't he?: Some say that Max Baer quit. Others say that he was slugged so terribly that he was paralyzed. Neither theory robs Joe Louis of any stature. If Baer quit, it was Louis who made him quit. There were too many people in that yard for Baer to bend the knee unless he were afraid of came through. Leo Durocher picked one of Warneke's high ones and smashed it toward the left-center wall.

Augie first underestimated the blow and then ran backwards and sidewards fully 50 feet and made the catch right against the green brick wall. No one thought he had the ball, but he clung to it as the 19,989 fans gave him a tumult of ovation.

Didn't Have a Chance.

The Cardinals didn't have a chance after that, going down one-two-three with Virgil Davis batting for Dean and providing the second out.

Chicago's next best chance to score also came in the eighth as Warneke singled off Durocher's glove and galloped to third on Herman's fifty-sixth double of the year, a vicious smash that skimmed down the third base line. But Lindstrom ended the threat, started with two out, by rolling weakly to Gelbert.

Jubilant and cocksure now, Manager Charlie Grimm announced he would send "General" Bill Lee out to the mound to clinch the pennant with a victory tomorrow. But Chicago still has Dizzy Dean to beat. Dizzy will fire them for the Cards.

Nazi Olympic Head, Alarmed Over Agitation, to Fly to U. S.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

BERLIN, Sept. 25.—Deeply interested by mounting anti-Olympic agitation in the United States, Theodore Lewald, 70-year-old president of the German Olympic Association, decided today to make a spectacular appeal to the American people to support the games.

At the invitation of Dr. Hugo Eckner, Lewald plans to accompany the great new Zeppelin on its maiden flight to Lakehurst, N. J., next spring and to answer the games' detractors in vigorous fashion.

"The Olympics without America simply would not be the Olympics," the veteran president said. "It is unthinkable. Eckner will arrange for me to make a broadcast from the ship when we reach America."

Lewald also revealed he was mailing a personal invitation to Helene Mayer, 1932 Olympic fencing champion now living in California, to attend the German trials in February with all expenses paid. This, he said, was his answer to charges that Miss Mayer would not be permitted to compete again for Germany because she is of Jewish blood.

"We do not have any way of knowing if she has retained her skill after four years," Lewald said, "but we hope she will come over. Believe me, we wish more than anybody in America that we had some Jewish athletes of Olympic caliber. But we have none and I believe no one in America would want us to put a second-rate athlete on our team just because he is Jewish. That certainly isn't the Olympic spirit."

Myrtlewood Beats Out Clang in Match

World Record Holder Wins by Inches in Test.

By the Associated Press.

Hawthorne Race Track, Chicago, Sept. 25.—Myrtlewood, holder of the world's record for 6 furlongs, defeated Clang, record holder for 7 furlongs, by a nose in a special $3,000 match race at 6 furlongs today.

Myrtlewood sprinted the 6 furlongs in 1:10 4-5, a fifth of a second off the track record, which she holds. The two horses each carried 110 pounds, with Jockey J. McCoy piloting the winner. Myrtlewood closed at 1 to 2 in the betting and paid $2.80 to win. The two sprinters ran as a team for 5 furlongs, but Myrtlewood gained enough advantage to hold the winning margin by inches.

Cincinnati, Sept. 25.—Police Sergt. John Oman told his superiors he floored Larry MacPhail, general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, in a tussle in a hotel elevator here early today.

"I beat him up. The fight ended with MacPhail on the floor," he reported.

"There wasn't any fight," laughed MacPhail in turn.

Newsmen noted minor cuts and bruises on his face, and a bruised eye.

"You can get that from bumping into a door," he observed.

Male, at 157 Pounds, Is Lightest Cavali

Special Dispatch to The Post.

University, Va., Sept. 25.—The lightest man on Virginia's varsity football squad has made sure of a place in the starting line-up. He is Evan James Male, better known as "Bus," who can be first team quarter back as long as he keeps up the brilliant play he has been showing so far this fall. He weighs only 157 pounds. His home is in Clarksburg, W. Va., and he prepped at Staunton Military Academy.

Ingram, Borries, Dalton and Douglas Named as Backfield.

By George Trevor,
Nationally Known Football Authority.

A SLIM-NOSED torpedo boat stole into the harbor of Cardenas in 1898, an officer fearlessly exposed on the cambered deck. From a shore battery masked by palm leaves came a hollow cough followed by the explosion of a 6-inch shell. In a widening pool of red lay the body of Ensign Worth Bagley—the only American naval officer killed in the War with Spain.

It was the same Worth Bagley whose towering punch stood off Navy's adversaries on the football fields of the 90's. Navy has never had a greater kicker than Bagley nor a stancher defensive player, though Bill Clark of present-day fame comes a close second. Bagley's kicking duels with Brooke of Pennsylvania are an Annapolis legend.

Down at Crabtown on the Bay the name of Jack Dalton, like that of Abou Ben Adhem, leads all the rest when Navy backs are mentioned. Dalton could dent a line like the ram of a dreadnaught, average 50 yards on punts and drop or place-kick smartly. His talented toe decided the 1910 and 1911 Army games, after his end runs and plunges had brought the ball within kicking range. Jack rivaled Ted Coy, of Yale, in ability but got far less publicity than his Eli contemporary.

Archie Douglas, coxswain of the 1906-07 Navy attacks, had few equals as a line-breaker, wide runner and kicker. He could get that vital yard on the goal line no matter how tight the defense. Jonas Ingram, a nifty pass-snatcher and line-bucker, caught the first aerial ever completed for a touchdown in the service series.

Beyond doubt loose-limbed, swivel-hipped Fred Borries of the rakish-loping stride was Navy's greatest broken field runner. His baffling change of pace and crab-like side step fooled Army's surest tacklers. Borries had the rare gift of relaxation. He rested between plays and let his muscles grow limp, but they became taut as bowstrings once the ball was snapped. Cool as a Conger eel he faded back to toss passes or to measure a colleague for a neatly timed lateral.

Navy's Bill Ingram, Jonas' kid brother, would skipper the Annapolis all-timers. This shrewd pilot later retired from the service and coached with distinction at Navy and California. Another clever quarterback was Johnny Whelchel who steered the dreadnaughts fashioned by Dobie and fishtailed like a barracuda when lugging the ball.

Navy had five super-tackles—Percy Northcroft, Clyde King, Slade Cutter, Dan Eddy and Frank Wickhorst. Northcroft's place kick from a sharp angle from the 45-yard line featured the 1908 Army game. He is a commander today. King, stroke oar of the Olympic crew, propelled two placements between the Army uprights in 1919. He also booted a brace of field goals against Princeton in 1921. The 1926 Navy team, awarded the mythical national title, had a grand tackle combination in Wickorst and Eddy. They smothered Friedman's passes in the Michigan game. Eddy stroked a victorious Navy crew. Slade Cutter, heavyweight boxer, hurled his massive frame into Army's back field consistently last fall and place-kicked the goal which ended a long span of Navy defeats. He played the flute for relaxation.

Cracky Dague, tough as a marlin spike, was the hardest tackler among Navy ends. He whip-cracked the luckless ball toter in a way that would have pleased Bob Zuppke, who insisted that tackles should be heard rather than seen. Wendell Taylor's savage boxing of the defensive tackle was one reason why Bob Folwell's Navy attacks functioned so effectively. Taylor was built like a belaying pin. Walter Izard, though no bigger than a whistling buoy, terrified giants of the 90s with his Hinkey-like tackles.

John Babe Brown, now director of athletics at Annapolis, loomed like a colossus above Navy guards. This massive chap specialized in booting placement goals when he wasn't ripping Army's line apart. He split the Cadet uprights three times in 1913, but Army's passes discounted those nine points. John Halligan, now a dignified admiral, shone like a lighthouse in Navy's defense in the late 90s. Charles Belknap, who likewise attained admiral's stripes, was another great guard of the old school. Magruder Tuttle, better known as King Tut, was Navy's widest ranging center, though the salty named Slingluff had more sheer power.

Lemont, Minton Score for Nash Brothers at Havre de Grace

Former Takes Sprint Event By Nose

Fluton Beaten in Duel Down Home Stretch; 9,000 Turn Out.

By Walter Haight,
A Staff Correspondent.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 25.—The Nash Brothers, Chicago automobile magnates, arrived here this morning and J. J. Greeley, who trains their Shandon Farms Stable, put on a show for them this afternoon. The principal actor was Lemont, a juvenile son of Sun Flag, which showed his bosses his gameness with a nose verdict over Fluton in the Prospect, a 5½-furlong sprint and the day's feature. In the day's other events, the Shandon Farms had Minton a winner, and Galmica second by a nose.

Fair Knightess was first to show in front as the field left the gate for the feature, with Proclivity and Fluton closest of the others in the field of eight. Lemont was under slight restraint at this time, as was Fluton.

When the field was straightened out in the stretch. Lemont and Fluton charged at the leading and tiring Fair Knightess. The two coming horses hooked up in a duel at the sixteenth pole and fought it out to the wire, with riders beating as if their lives depended on the outcome. Lemont had a bare nose the best of it.

Lemont, heavily backed by the Nashes, was not considered seriously by the army of $2 bettors and paid a $13.20 mutuel.

Double Worth $40.60.

Perfect racing conditions continued to hold sway and a crowd of 9,000 was in attendance. The heavy pay-offs of the last few days brought an increase in the play on the daily double. The betting totaled $13,936 and those who backed the combination of Minton, in the first, and Mah Grant, in the third, were rewarded with a $40.60. mutuel.

Minton, the Shandon Farm's veteran, came from far behind to take a close decision from Credulous in the first race. Ridden by Fred Faust, the Washington boy, Minton began his move at the far turn and won going away. Miss Snow was third in the field of eight. Minton paid $7.20.

A nose finish marked the second race with Ceaseless barely beating the favorite, Galmica. Mal Grant, with the veteran Joe Renick in the saddle, was up in the closing strides to win from Sunned and Last Boat in the third sprint of the day, Sunned and Last Boat ran the legs off each other and had nothing left when Mah Grant began to take the race seriously. The winner paid $11.90.

First Favorite Wins.

Ramus proved the first winning favorite of the day in the fifth race, driving home ahead of Ross and Flying Dere, to pay $4.80. Decorate set the pace early, but dropped out when the stretch racing began.

Play Book made a runaway of the sixth race, leading by ten lengths at one period and won while being pulled up. Cherokee Sal came "out of the clouds" to be second ahead of Sun Abbott, the favotrite. Play Book paid $10.10.

Dunair, ridden by the unfashionable Jockey E. Johnson, was turned sidewise when the starting bell came in the final, but ran a winning race, to pay $14.80. Hereward was second and Furled Flag third.

BILLIE WISE	110	5	1	1h	3h	7h	8	Luther		16.45

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MINTON, $7.20, $4.20, $2.70; CREDULOUS, $3.20, $2.40; MISS SNOW, $2.80.

MINTON, lucky to gain clear racing room when driving up between horses midway of the final turn, came determinedly when reaching the home stretch and was up in the last few yards. CREDULOUS, in the thick of early contention and kept on the outside of the leaders, responded to stiff punishment, wore CHILIAD down midway of the stretch drive, but could not resist the winner. MISS SNOW, unable to stride freely in the first half-mile, secured racing room on the inside after reaching the home stretch and finished stoutly. CHILIAD had a lot taken out of him getting to the front, and he weakened in the final drive. HAPPY INVER showed a good effort. TODY CON showed early speed. BILLIE WISE had speed for the first half-mile, then tired.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:45. Off at 2:48. Winner, K. E. Hitt's ch. g. (2), by Ed Crump—Immortelle. Trained by T. Rodrock. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:47 4-5, 1:14 1-5.

ANJOE	108	1	3	1h	5h	5½	6	Johnson		62.75

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CEASELESS, $7.50, $3.30, $2.50; GALMICA, $3.10, $2.30; TERMINATION, $2.80.

CEASELESS raced ANJOE into quick submission to open up a clear lead rounding the turn, saved ground, but had to be ridden out to the limit to withstand GALMICA. The latter, pinched back slightly midway of the back stretch, was steered to the outside after leaving the back stretch, responded readily to a severe drive and closed fastest of all. TERMINATION worked his way up between his field on the far side of the track, was placed to punishment in the last three-sixteenths and fought it out stubbornly. TIME TO GO was unable to enter contention at any stage and passed tiring horses. FLOSILDA had no excuses. ANJOE displayed speed for a half-mile, then tired.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:15. Off at 3:17½. Winner, J. S. Klein's br. f. (3), by General Grant—Mah Jong. Trained by Ed Troiter. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 3-5, 1:13 4-5.

ROUGH PLAYER	110	4	6	7h	7½	7½	7½	Reid		19.90
POISON CUP	110	7	8	8	8	8	8	Luther		72.05

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAH GRANT, $11.90, $5.20, $3.80; SUNNED, $7.30, $4.00; LAST BOAT, $4.70.

MAH GRANT eased out of tight quarters after the opening furlong, swung to the outside after being kept in close pursuit of the leaders, responded willingly to a tenacious drive and was up in the last few strides. SUNNED gained brief command after rounding the elbow, withstood stiff contention from LAST BOAT and held on courageously. LAST BOAT, hard ridden after being displaced midway of the turn, was in tight quarters all during the stretch drive and had little racing room at the end when he dropped back. MONK'S TIME improved his position on the outside and finished stoutly. SATRAPAL was not in fast to join the pacemakers, but failed to stay in the closing drive. TORPRIDA could not improve her position. ROUGH PLAYER and POISON CUP were outrun.

THE DAILY DOUBLE (first and third races) PAID—$40.60.

FOURTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. The Prospect; allowances. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:45. Off at 3:46½. Winner, Shandon Farm's br. c. (2), by Sun Flag—Pera. Trained by J. J. Greely. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 4-5, 1:00, 1:06 4-5.

MISS FERN	104	6	8	8	8	8	8	Howell		159.95

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LEMONT, $13.20, $5.10, $3.60; FLUTON, $3.90, $2.90; FAIR KNIGHTESS, $3.70.

LEMONT, showing considerable improvement and a keen factor in the early racing, moved up on the inside of the leaders when entering the home stretch, then closing in stout fashion, outlasted FLUTON nearing the finish. FLUTON, in close attendance of the early leaders, was carried wide into the home stretch, then weakened after getting a slight lead during the closing furlong. FAIR KNIGHTESS had good speed to race PROCLIVITY into defeat, responded gamely when put to a drive, but faltered in the closing furlong. PROCLIVITY had been speed for a half-mile, then weakened. SPEED raced forwardly but could not threaten. GREEN MIST was unable to threaten the leaders. BLUE ALICE was outrun.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:15. Off at 4:18½. Winner, Ascot Stable's b. g. (7), by Willis—Poppy II. Trained by F. E. Kraft. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:48 4-5, 1:14 3-5, 1:40 3-5, 1:47 3-5.

WISE SISTER	103	7	6	6½	2h	3½	7	Phillips		13.35

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RAMUS, $4.80, $3.30, $2.70; ROSS, $5.00, $3.10; FLYING DERE, $3.10.

RAMUS, hard hustled to gain a forward position at the first turn, came through on the inside of DECORATE to take command at the final turn, was hard ridden thereafter and had enough left to withstand ROSS. Latter, slow to get into full stride, bettered his position steadily and came with excellent courage for the closing drive. FLYING DERE suffered interference at the first turn, recovered gamely and came with good energy when taken to the outside in the last three-sixteenths. DECORATE was used up resisting strong contention from GOLDEN QUEST and WISE SISTER and he tired. GOLDEN QUEST went strongly for six furlongs. HIGH FLAG had a rough trip early. WISE SISTER was rushed off her feet to enter early contention.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:45. Off at 4:54. Winner, Mrs. L. H. Nimkoff's b. g. (3), by Bookbinder—Snakebite. Trained by Sam Simon. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:14, 1:40 2-5, 1:48.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PLAY BOOK, $10.10, $4.50, $3.40; CHEROKEE SAL, $6.10, $3.50; SUN ABBOT, $2.70.

PLAY BOOK outran her field to the first turn, opened up a commanding lead midway of the back stretch, then held sway for the balance of the journey. CHEROKEE SAL, as is usual slow to get going, worked her way into contention steadily and came with good courage in the final issue. SUN ABBOT bettered his position gamely and finished under punishment. DUNWIN gained a forward position when reaching the final turn, but weakened after being straightened out in the home stretch. MADGES FELLOW closed fast, but was very unruly at the post and delayed the start. NEVER IDOL was held safe throughout. VENNIE H had early speed. BENDROMEL was never a factor. LODORUS was done early. MAJOR LEE stopped.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start poor from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:25. Off at 5:28½. Winner, G. C. Beyer's ch. g. (5), by Dunlin—Imagination. Trained by L. M. Carver. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:49, 1:15 2-5, 1:42, 1:49 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DUNAIR, $14.80, $5.30, $3.40; HEREWARD, $3.40, $2.60; FURLED FLAG, $3.00.

DUNAIR, crossways in front of his field when he broke through the gate, away poorly, was full of run to enter contention when reaching the last turn, swung to the outside to run down OUR SHIP midway of the home stretch and held on stoutly to outstay HEREWARD. The latter met with interference when leaving the back stretch, came through on the inside during the stretch drive and finished stoutly. FURLED FLAG came with a bold rush through the late stages and finished full of all. OUR SHIP took command midway of the back stretch, was steadied until forced to a drive, but weakened. CHANCE DAME went prominently in the early running and had no excuses. FAIR BILLY could not threaten. McDONALD H. was unable to break clear when DUNAIR swerved in front of his field.

Terps Facing Difficult Schedule

Reserves Are Lacking; Dobson's Experience Expected to Aid.

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

THE shell covering the University of Maryland's Terrapins, 1935 version, conceals not a peace-loving testudinate reptile that shies at the approach of an enemy, but rather a vicious, pugnacious snapping turtle that promises to wreak havoc in the Southern Conference garden patch this autumn.

A glance at the schedule arranged for the team that Curley Byrd elevated to a prominent position in the gridiron world is proof enough that Old Line athletic authorities believe they have a first-class collection of players on their roster. And a careful analysis of the squad on the field shows them to be right—insofar as the first team is concerned.

Reserves Are Scarce.

But when the coaches go digging into their reserve supply the scarcity of men is appalling. If the Terps can get along with something like 15 men, if they miraculously escape the clutches of the injury bugaboo, they will be tough material for any nutcracker. But if misfortune hits the squad and the burden is shifted to the willing but weak reserves' shoulders, the Terps are going to be turtle soup in some foe's kettle.

From stem to stem in the front line, with but a single exception, Maryland will present a solid wall of lettermen. At one end, the right, will be stolid Lou Ennis, a quiet, steady player who would go well on any club. At the opposite flank towers the 6-foot-5-inch frame of Vic Willis, son of the old Pittsburgh baseball star, who is building a reputation all his own in football.

Birkland, Callahan Tackles.

For tackles Maryland has Johnny Birkland, its heavyweight boxer and a veteran on the chalk marks, and Charley Callahan, a reformed guard who has ousted another veteran, Carl Stalfort, from his regular berth. Birkland scales 192 pounds and armed for battle weighs 192 pounds. Callahan is three pounds lighter but just as tall. One look at these boys in action would satisfy the most particular fan.

For guards there are Ed Minion, probably the most under-rated lineman in the entire conference, and Bill Wolfe, the lone nonletter winner, who is fresh from the yearling squad. Wolfe won his position over Al Farrell, another vet, who has since been returned to his normal position at tackle.

The team will not have to worry about center as long as Bill Andorka is in uniform, and even if the 168-pound snapperback be out of action there will be no great flurry of excitement. Ed Fletcher, who alternates at guard and center, and Frank de Armee, who is being made over into a full back, can do the job and do it well. Standing behind these are two sophomores, Charley Heaton and Bob Walton, green but willing and potential varsity material.

First-Class Back Field.

Maryland will have one first-class back field at the very outset of the season in Bill Guckeyson, Coleman Headley, Johnny Gormely and "Dummy" Sachs, all of whom sport their "M's." Ed Daly, a fine defensive half back; Charley Yaeger, Charlie Ellinger and Jack Stonebraker comprise the second ball-carrying corps, and they pack a scoring wallop, too. But there is an apparent difference between the two groups. The first is smoother, more rythmic and has a football presence of mind; the second seems to be just a year away from the top ranking.

Too green to be counted on for much work at this writing are Waverly Wheeler, De Armee, Bill Bryant, Cordon Lindsay and Jack Hurley. Wheeler and De Armee are the most promising, but they need plenty of coaching and experience. "Knocky" Thomas, younger brother of the original "Knocky," who won undying fame in the gold and black yarn of Maryland football togs, was counted a comer, but an appendectomy erased him from the roster for the remainder of the season.

Reserve Linemen.

Reserve linemen include Bernie Buscher, Bob Compiglio, the Nation's high scorer three years ago at a small West Virginia college; Bill Garrott, Bill Edwards, Charlie Zulick, Harry Gretz, Bernie Cummings and the others mentioned above. But, as in the case of the backs, the spirit is willing—but it takes more than spirit.

Maryland this season will have the benefit of Frank Dobson's son's coaching experience and that can be counted another ace in the deck. Working with youthful Jack Faber, Roy Mackert and "Rosy" Pollock, graduates of the school where they absorbed much of the cagey Byrd's black magic, the Dobson can supply the experience, the old head, so necessary to success on the gridiron.

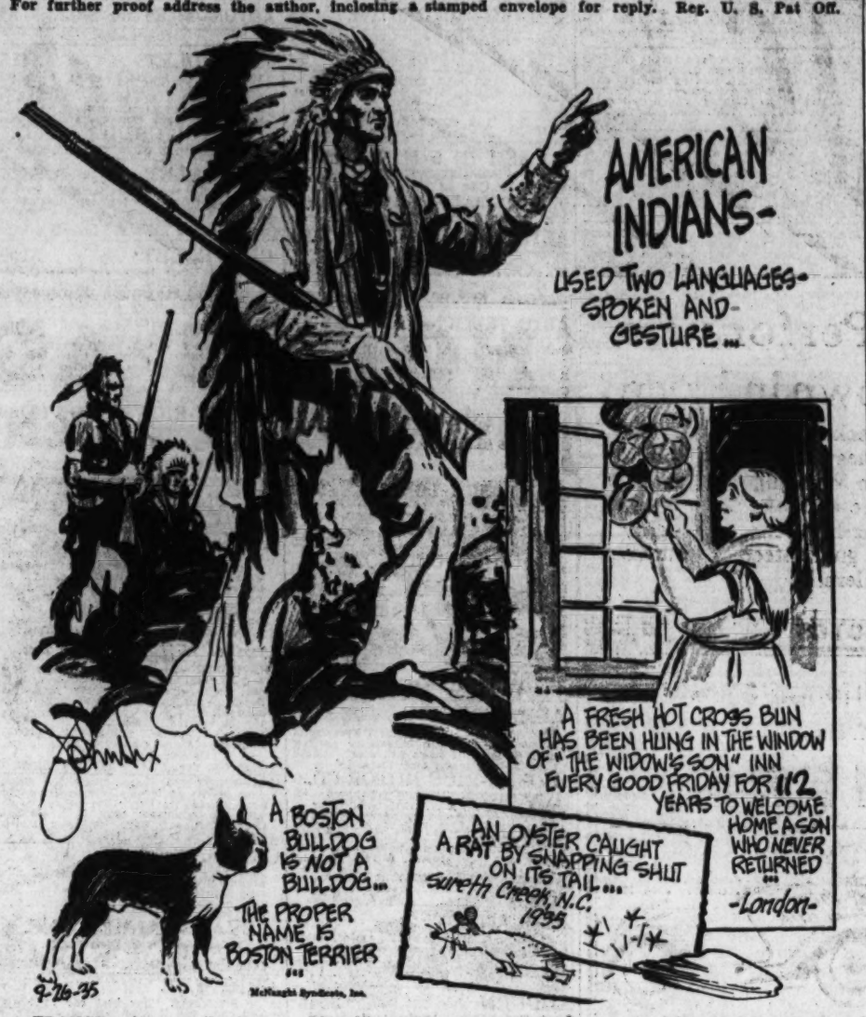
Variety of Laterals.

The Old Line's double-wing back attack will be interspersed with plays operating from a single wing, Dobson's strong suit, and a variety of lateral and forward passes. Willis, who specializes in grabbing short pegs over the line of scrimmage, will be an important figure in the aerial attack. But Willis will not be the entire show, not with Ennis catching the long heaves, and the backs playing basket ball while returning punts.

Maryland's schedule, to be frank about it, looks too strenuous for it. V. P. I., North Carolina, V. M. I., Florida, Indiana, Washington and Lee, Georgetown and Syracuse on successive Saturdays is a prohibitive engagement list. It will not be surprising if the Terps are forced back into their shells by at least two of these.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.



STRANGE as it seems, the American Indians had two languages by which they communicated—one spoken and one silent. The silent, or gesture, language of the Indians was highly developed, and by it they could carry on a conversation as understandable to them as words. This language was a natural development of a people that at times had to maintain strict silence in the presence of enemies—even whispers that might escape the notice of a white man could be heard by other Indians.

More than 100 years ago, in a small tavern in London, a widow bade her son good-by as he left to see the world. He promised to return. Later the mother received a letter from her wandering son—he told her he would be home by Good Friday, and asked her to hang a hot cross bun in the window for him. The mother did as she was asked, but the son did not come home. Next year on Good Friday she again hung a hot cross bun in the window, but her son did not come home. The next year and the next she followed this custom, and for 50 years, until her death, she kept adding new buns there every Good Friday—but her son never came back.

The inn came to be known as the Widow's Son Inn, and after her death another son operated the place. He and proprietors who followed him maintained the custom of the hot cross bun—and every year, for more than 110 years, the welcome sign to the long-lost son has hung in the window of the inn on Good Friday.

Frederick Gridmen Book D. C. Opponents

Frederick, Md., Sept. 24.—The Frederick Athletic Club football team, runner-up for the State grid title last year, will open its 1935 season on October 6 against the Hawthorne A. C. of Baltimore here. Robert (Nig) Grove, manager and coach of the local eleven, has "Pepco" Barry, former Washington sandlot star, and Dick Butler, former Quantico Marine half back, in addition to Bruce Ferguson, Joe Lipsky, Carl Blissman and Webster Lucas, former Western Maryland College luminaries. The Frederick club has games pending with the Maryland A. C. and Palace A. C. of Washington.

Cyclist, 84, Defies Desert.

Casa Grande, Ariz. (U.P.).—To 84-year-old M. L. Porter, of Casa Grande, age and distance mean little. He recently pedaled his bicycle from Phoenix to Casa Grande, a distance of 60 miles, beneath the blazing desert sun.

Store Owned 70 Years.

Concord, Mass. (U.P.). — Frank Pierce, 85, recently celebrated his seventieth anniversary as proprietor of a shoe store in Concord's business district. He and his wife observed their golden wedding anniversary not long ago.

Fortune Told and Taken.

Webster, Mass. (U.P.).—Louis Menderville, 91, had his "fortune" told—and taken. A woman "blessed" his money and told him not to look at it for several hours. When he counted it, he found $2.30 missing.

Machine Paddles Clover.

Xenia, Ohio (U.P.).—Jess A. Garringer and William Pershing have completed a machine for gathering seed from sweetclover. The machine, tractor driven, consists of a revolving paddle which beats agains the clover and throws the seed into a large tin container.

Puff Ball Halts Train.

Erie, Mich. (U.P.).—Engineer John Schur stopped his locomotive when he saw what appeared to be a huge whitewashed cannonball perched along the right-of-way. It was a puff ball 48 inches in circumference and weighing ten pounds.

Clients Hoard Checks.

Walla Walla, Wash. (U.P.).—Treasurer Ben Thompson has a problem to solve. It seems people who have money coming from the county apparently aren't hard up. Some warrants which have been made out since last June have not been cashed.

Plunging Boy Caught.

Eureka, Kans. (U.P.).—Ray Howard, working at the bottom of a 19-foot well, glanced upward and saw his son, Donld, 10, toppling over the top. Howard barely had time to brace himself to catch the boy. Donald was uninjured.

Thieves Go Seasonal.

Huntsville, Mo. (U.P.).—Seasonal note: A thief stole two unfinished quilts and a sweater from a car belonging to Dr. S. C. Adams as the owner attended a horse show.

Smyth Seen Star At Mt. St. Mary's

Kicking of Philadelphian Hailed by Coach.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Emmitsburg, Md., Sept. 24.—Opponents of Mount St. Mary's College are going to see a lot of Corning Smyth this season. This youth from Philadelphia is the leading candidate for the position of quarter back on the Mountaineer squad, and his ability as a triple-threat man will go a long way toward making things hard for the opposition.

Smyth's kicking is superb, in the estimation of Head Coach Joe Lawler. In addition to his ability to drop the pigskin 55 and 60 yards down the field, he possesses uncanny ability to push it into the corner. He is also accomplished as a drop kicker, a passer and a field general.

The possibility that as many as ten members of the Mounts opening game line-up will be newcomers appears strong in view of performances this fall. Charles Reilly, a senior from Pleasantville, N. J., may start at half back, while Bill Sullivan, another senior from Quincy, Mass., may start at tackle.

Flour Demand, Short Selling Boost Grains

Fear of Corn Squeeze Aids Sentiment; Foreign Markets Soar.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—In the face of concentrated selling from Eastern sources, wheat prices showed strength today, aided by evidence of unusually active demand for flour.

Both northwest and southwest purchasing of flour was reported as in excess of the capacity of mills. Fear of fireworks ahead in the corn market before September speculative accounts are adjusted was also a bullish influence.

Wheat closed firm at the same as yesterday's finish to 1⅝ higher, December 98⅜-98½, corn ⅜ off to 1 cent up; December 57⅞-58, oats unchanged to ⅞ advance, and provisions unchanged to 32 cents decline.

Contributing to an unmistakable undertone of firmness pervading the Chicago wheat market from the outset was word that October delivery of wheat at Liverpool had soared 2⅛ cents today owing to scantiness of immediate supplies on hand. Besides, September delivery of corn in Chicago jumped early to within ¼ cent of the season's top price record.

Highlights and Background Of Financial News and Trends

Stocks Maintain Firm Tone in Moderate Trading—Government Bonds Edge Forward Slightly—Guilders Continue Heavy—Wheat Rises.

By Carlton A. Shively.

New York, Sept. 25.—Many important Wall Street operators in the stock market are reported to be inactive, having drawn in their forces a short time ago to await developments. The market, nevertheless, seems to be doing well without the special help. Today's trading at slightly larger volume, around 1,100,000 shares, brought a further forward movement. Prices at no time for the leading stocks went much in advance of the previous closing levels, and a tendency to ease off appeared in the last hour, but the day was on the bull side. Government bonds were firmer. December wheat closed ¼ of a cent higher at 98½ cents a bushel.

In stocks the increased activity in the oils was a diverting development. Barnsdall advanced fractionally on large volume. Jersey was active at a higher price. Barnsdall resumed dividends with declaration of a quarterly payment of 15 cents and an extra of 5 cents a share, the first payments since May, 1931. Philips gained more than a point.

Motor accessories extended their advance. Timkin Roller, Motor Products and Briggs were features. Briggs is rumored for a higher dividend. Small gains were the rule for the motors, steels, utilities, rails, amusements, tobaccos, foods and rubbers. In the chemical group Air Reduction and Monsanto climbed 2 points. Columbian Carbon rose a point and others were firm.

Some good gains were made by the preferred shares in the utility section. American Woolen preferred set a new high, as did the common. Curtiss-Wright issues were active and the common went into new high prices. Fertilizer shares drew much attention. Virginia Carolina 7 per cent preferred advanced 10 points.

Prices hardened 1 to 3 points in Brunswick, Clark Equipment, Food Machinery, Holland Furnace, Libbey Owens, Thatcher and some other specialties. Telephone set a good example for investment stocks.

With the season already far advanced so far as the money market is concerned, the demand for bank credit continues passive. Money rates are unchanged and show little likelihood of increase. Foreign exchanges were again unsettled. Pressure on the gold currencies continued, particularly on guilders, but francs were fairly steady. So long as the Italian war uncertainty remains nothing like steadiness in foreign exchange is to be expected. Sterling was firm most of the day, which is contrary to the seasonal action of the currency.

Available testimony on the business position was mostly on the side of firm markets. Midweek steel trade reviews noted some slackness in immediate demand, but the expectation of active orders from the automotive industry is sustaining confidence. If anything appears to be justified, it is the prevailing confidence in a good motor demand for the coming season. Failure of that industry to live up to hopes would have a decidedly bearish influence on the stock market but that does not seem likely. Steel scrap prices are firm and miscellaneous demand is good.

On other sides the indications are that the autumn is bringing a good seasonal trade. Electircal output is showing larger gains and car loadings now are running above last year. Progress in settlement of the bituminous coal dispute points to maintenance of better railroad traffic. Rural purchasing will make itself increasingly felt with the cashing of harvests. It may be interesting for security market analysts to speculate on whether prices have run ahead of or behind the business procession and whether they have overdiscounted further improvement. For investors the position seems sound enough.

Premier Colijn's remarks about maintenance of the present gold standard in Holland yesterday received only slight attention here but brought a sensational break in guilders in foreign markets before the local exchange market opened today.

Cotton Prices Firm In Dull Session

New York, Sept. 25 (AP).—Cotton fluctuated within small range today, closing steady, net unchanged to 5 points lower.

There were some buying orders here from the trade and Far Eastern sources at the opening. This was supplied on early advances of about 2 to 8 points, and prices later worked lower under scattering liquidation in the near months and Southern hedging.

Exports today, 37,806, making 542,268 so far this season. Port receipts, 43,144. U. S. port stocks, 1,709,393.

Western Roads Report Surplus

Three Large Systems Make Good Showing in August.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 25.—The heads of three important Northwestern Railway systems reported today that traffic on their lines made a good showing in August.

Charles Donnelly, president of Northern Pacific, said his road more than covered its fixed charges in August, although earnings ran slightly below a year ago.

Ralph E. Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, declared that gross revenues showed a gain over last year, although car loadings were lower. The road had a surplus after charges for the month.

W. P. Kenney, head of the Great Northern, reported a surplus after charges of approximately $1,200,000 for the month.

Kennedy Sees Solid Reason for Stock Rise

New York, Sept. 25 (AP).—Joseph P. Kennedy, sailing for Europe today on his retirement as chairman of the Securities and Exhange Commission, expressed the opinion that the recent bull market in Wall Street had been based on solid business improvement. In answer to a question about upturn of the past few months, Kennedy said in an interview: "Business conditions certainly warranted a rise, and the improvement in securities is not just coming out of a clear sky." Concerning the commissmisson's new job of enforcing the securities act, the former chairman said: "I haven't been out long enough to make any prophesies, but I am sure the crowd down there can handle it all right."

Anaconda Files New Bond Issue

4½ Per Cent Sinking Fund Debentures Mature in 1950.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 25.—The Anaconda Copper Mining Co. has filed a registration statement for $55,000,000 of 4½ per cent sinking fund debentures, the proceeds of which will be used to fund bank loans which were shown in its latest statement to approximate $60,000,000.

The debentures will mature October 1, 1950. The sinking fund is fixed at $1,000,000 a year plus 20 per cent of annual net profit, but in no event is it to be more than a cumulative maximum of $5,500,000 a year. If the cumulative maximum should average that amount each year, the issue would be retired within ten years.

The issue is being underwritten by a syndicate headed by Blythe & Co.

A GREATER
REPUBLIC STEEL CORPORATION
NOW OFFERS AN EVEN BROADER SERVICE TO AMERICAN INDUSTRY

THE Corrigan McKinney Steel Company and Newton Steel Company, highly important factors in the industry—have merged their future with that of Republic.

The Corrigan McKinney Steel Company is an important producer of pig iron and steel, with tremendous holdings of northern ores, advantageous terminal facilities on the Great Lakes, and strategically located plants.

Republic is already the world's largest producer of alloy steels—the exclusive maker of Enduro, the perfected stainless steel.

Republic pioneered in the development of electric weld pipe. It is the sole maker of the marvelous rust-resisting Toncan Iron—the widely used Agathon alloys—and the new Republic Double Strength Steel, a revolutionary high tensile metal.

It is unexcelled in the manufacture of high grade plain carbon steels for products in which forging, heat-treating, or machineability are vital factors.
